REPORT VICTORY FOR MRS. COWLES

THREATENS TO SUE FOSS

MRS. BURKE TELLS HOW SHE KIDNAPED SON IN PORTO RICO

Mrs. Alice Burke, the South Boston woman who arrived in Boston yesterday with the five-year-old son, Henry, whom she had kidnaped from the Porto Rico family with whom her husband had left the boy, today told how the kidnaping was accomplished.

Mrs. Burke said she owed the success of her plan to the friendly assistance of a man she met on the steamer on her way to Porto Rico. This man was a chauffeur, and it was his automobile which after the kidnaping whisked mother and child to the boat that brought them to the United States.

Francis B. Burke, Mrs. Burke's husband, is an instructor in English at the University of Panama. He is the son of Sergeant Bernard E. Burke of the Newton police.

Mrs. Burke's story is full of a mother's devotion. She said:

"I married Mr. Burke in 1909, while he was on a vacation here. I went with him to Porto Rico, where he was an instructor in the University of Comerio, and we were very happy there. Our little son was born, but shortly after that my health became so bad in the tropical climate that it was decided I should come to the United States to recuperate.

"The baby was left in his father's care. It is only recently that I have learned what happened. In 1913 Mr. Burke received an offer which took him to Panama. He left the boy in charge of a Spanish family in Porto Rico and told them the child had no other relations and that he could not support it.

"One day I got a letter from him from Panama. He said the boy was with him and was well. I had not known he was in Panama. I wrote to the authorities, learned that the boy was not there, and decided at once to go to Porto Rico and hunt for my boy.

"Through a letter to the educational department in Porto Rico I learned where little Henry—my son—was living with a Porto Rican family. I got together enough money to make the trip, went there, found the family and saw my child.

"But they would not give him up. They said the father had told them the boy had no living relatives, and that I had no claim on my own son. I was desperate. I had only a little money, and I had to start home quickly.

"On the steamer on the way down I had met John McGraw, to whom I told my story. He was very interested and sympathetic. After finding my son I saw Mr. McGraw again and told him they would not give up Henry.

"I told him what I planned, and he agreed to help me. We drove to the house where Henry was being kept. He was playing on the porch. I ran in, caught him up, jumped into Mr. McGraw's automobile, and we raced for the steamer landing, and caught the Carolina when she sailed for the United States.

"My son can only speak Spanish now, but I intend to bring him up as a good, loyal American. Although he cannot remember when I left Porto Rico, he is already devotedly attached to me. It makes me feel well again just to have him here."

DRISCOLL TO FIGHT CHARGES

Dennis D. Driscoll, former penal institutions commissioner, today consulted counsel, as the result of the charges contained in an open letter of former Governor Foss to District Attorney Pelletier, that former Mayor Fitzgerald made the proposition to him, while he (Foss) was Governor, that if Foss would appoint Driscoll as prison commissioner, Driscoll would call off several strikes then in progress at plants controlled by Mr. Foss.

The lawyer consulted today by Mr. Driscoll is Frederick W. Mansfield, former State treasurer.

Today Mr. Driscoll said: "I have consulted Mr. Mansfield with regard to bringing suit against Mr. Foss for defamation of character. I am full of fight in this matter, and propose to call Mr. Foss's bluff. I never was a candidate for prison commissioner, and Foss knows it. I am going through with this fight to the end."

In the letter Mr. Foss said that Mr. Driscoll was conducting the Trades Union Liberty League, under orders from the Massachusetts Breweries Company.

In reply to whether or not his company is financing the "Liberty League," Vice-President Arthur H. Alley of the company said: "You know Foss. If my friends rather believe him than me they can. We have lawyers, and I must refer all inquiries on the matter to our attorneys, Clark & Ordway."

District Attorney Pelletier announced today that he is busy "digesting" the Foss letter. Mr. Foss thinks Mr. Pelletier should take official action because of the charge he makes that the liquor and trade union interests have conspired together to injure his gubernatorial aspirations.

Mr. Pelletier said: "I have just received the letter and have it now under consideration. As soon as I digest its contents I may have a statement to make."

FOSS' LETTER.

The Foss letter is part reads:

"You have, I believe, personal knowledge of the fact that one Dennis D. Driscoll, who, until his recent removal by Mayor Curley, enjoyed the emoluments, as well as the honor received at the hands of former Mayor Fitzgerald of the office of Penal Commissioner of the city of Boston, is at present secretary of an organization, of what legal classification I do not know, called the 'Trades Union Liberty League,' the purpose of which, however, briefly stated, is to defeat me and national prohibition.

"It was this same Dennis D. Driscoll who, at the time of the former attempted strike of the three plants in 1912, was proposed to me, as Governor of the Commonwealth, by himself and by John F. Fitzgerald, for appointment as chairman of the Prison Commission Board, with the assurance that, if the appointment were made, the strike at each of the three plants would be called off. In other words, Driscoll's strike was on the other side of the coin from the strike of the workmen; if Driscoll were in with workmen's consent.

"And now Mr. Driscoll's strike is of the same nature. If he were to win, not only would the workmen lose the advantages of national prohibition, but, actually, there wouldn't be such a thing as a steady job in Massachusetts while Driscoll still had his health."

"I do not believe that any Faneuil

LAST RITES FOR JOHN D. LONG

The funeral of John D. Long, former Secretary of the Navy and three times Governor of Massachusetts, which took place in the New North Unitarian Church of Hingham this afternoon, brought a remarkable gathering of people to a service of simple beauty.

The mourners indicated both the high offices held by Mr. Long and also reflected, almost homely, simplicity of his nature.

Governor Walsh was there, attended by Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole and Executive Secretary Edward F. Hamlin. The latter was private secretary to Mr. Long in one of his three administrations as Governor. The Executive Council accompanied Governor Walsh.

FLAG DRAPED ON RAIL.

The Stars and Stripes were draped along the rail of the choir gallery for the former Cabinet member.

These banners and official mourners showed the prestige of John D. Long in State and nation.

Among the household mourners were William Smith, the family coachman, who drove Mr. Long for forty-five years, and Miss Catherine Burns, domestic in the Long home for about the same length of time, who was always "Kittie" to the Governor.

It was to "Kittie" Burns that Mr. Long uttered what is now regarded as a premonition of his death when he started for his summer place at Bucksfield, Me., early in the summer. The domestic remarked about some preparation for next year's trip. The former Governor replied:

"Kittie, I'm not going again. I'm afraid this is my last year at Bucksfield."

Another indication of the close personal relations of Mr. Long with his fellow men and even with the younger generation was in the selection of the military escort from K Company, Fifth Regiment, M. V. M., of Hingham, which escorted the body from house to church and later from church to grave.

CHOSEN BY MRS. LONG.

Mrs. Long chose the escort personally, selecting men whom the late Governor knew or whose father had been intimately associated with him. They were:

Captain Walter L. Bouve, First Lieutenant Ernest E. Lincoln, Sergeants George Melcher, George W. Mauss and John P. Woods, Corporals Lester Hiscott, Carl S. Rogers and Herbert E. Young, and Privates William Quinn and Roger W. Young.

The body, escorted by this detail, was taken at 12:30 o'clock from the Long homestead on Cottage street, Hingham, to the church, one-half mile distant.

The casket was placed at the head of the main aisle. Until 2 o'clock Hingham townspeople and mourners from out of town passed by the casket, viewing the body.

The church pulpit was adorned with wild hemlock, birch boughs and other foliage. A space to the right of the pulpit was banked with floral tributes. The Long family pew is the last one on the right-hand side at the back of the church. Mr. Long sat at the aisle end of the pew. This seat was draped with foliage today. The family and household mourners sat in reserved pews at the front.

The members of the Long family present included Mrs. Long, her son, Pierce Long of Hingham; her daughter, Dr. Margaret Long of Denver, and her sister, Miss Bertha Pierce of Boston.

Fear Crew of F-4 Devoured by Sea Monsters

By International News Service

HONOLULU, Aug. 31—Not a body was found today in the hull of the United States submarine F-4, which sank last March off this port with Lieutenant Eide and twenty-one men.

Neither did the naval men who raised the diver find any record by Lieutenant Eide concerning the cause of the disaster.

The submarine, which went to the bottom and failed to rise five months ago, was brought to the surface yesterday. Today the vessel was placed in drydock. It rested on its starboard side.

There were great holes in the bow and stern of the submarine. No trace of a body was discovered, but the aid of the hull was filled with debris. This is to be searched for bodies, but the holes in the underseas boat allowed the entrance of marine monsters, with which the Honolulu waters abound, and it is feared that the bodies of the F-4 victims have been destroyed.

Red Sox Office Scouts Tale of 'Betting Probe'

By RIGHT FIELD.

Red Sox headquarters in Boston expressed a good deal of doubt today over the report from Chicago that President Ban B. Johnson of the American League was coming to Boston "to prove stories of gambling at Fenway Park."

The Chicago story declared that Ban B. doubted the truth of the stories that had come to his attention, but that he was going to look into the matter when he came East in a few days.

President Lannin of the Red Sox is going out of town today to remain several days, and it was pointed out that he would not be leaving if the head of the American league was due.

No notice of any contemplated visit on the part of President Johnson has been received at the Jersey street offices, where the Chicago story about betting is declared to be altogether too strong.

Miller Held for Death of Butler

That Joseph Miller of Weymouth was driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor and that he was on the extreme left-hand side of the highway was the decision of Associate Justice Louis A. Cook in his report filed today in Norfolk Superior Court, relative to the inquest on the death of Chief of Police Patrick Butler of Weymouth, who was killed by an automobile driven by Joseph Miller. Miller was held for the Superior Court on the grounds of criminal negligence.

GERMANY'S TERMS ON ARABIC

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The Boston AMERICAN is able herewith to present from high and authoritative sources the exact concessions in submarine warfare offered to Secretary Lansing by Ambassador von Bernstorff.

Official confirmation of these concessions is expected by Ambassador von Bernstorff within the next forty-eight hours, possibly within twenty-four hours.

Germany admitted in diplomatic terms that in her submarine warfare she had grievously wronged America. She promised without qualification that the life of not one American citizen should in the future be endangered by her undersea boats.

Welsh Coal Mine Strike Is Settled

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The Welsh coal miners' strike was settled this afternoon. The demands of the men were granted. The settlement of the strike came after a meeting of the coalition cabinet.

David Lloyd George, secretary of munitions, met a conference of mine owners and strike leaders after the meeting of the cabinet. Afterward the owners and strike leaders went to Cardiff.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 31.—Turkish artillery has destroyed the position of the allied troops near Sedd-el-Bahr, it was officially announced today.

SAY WIFE WILL GET DIVORCE DECREE

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 31.—The Cowles divorce case has been compromised, according to a report that gained circulation at noon today after the conference between attorneys and the judge was ended.

Mrs. Florence J. Cowles, whose suit against Dr. Edward S. Cowles led to his filing a counter suit, said as she was leaving the court building:

"I am very happy."

Her face was radiant. No one would make a positive statement as to what agreement had been reached, but it was reported that Mrs. Cowles had won at least a partial victory, that she would be granted a divorce and the custody of the children.

There will be a trial, but it will be of Mrs. Cowles' suit, and it will be uncontested, according to the present report. It will probably be formal and brief, and a decree will then be granted Mrs. Cowles.

The morning conference began shortly before 10 o'clock and continued until 12:30. There was much sparring back and forth. The chief point at issue was the question of the custody of the children—two little daughters, four and five years old.

DISPUTE OVER CHILDREN.

Mrs. Cowles at first demanded absolute custody of the two little girls, who are at present at the Brookline home of her mother, Mrs. H. J. Joquith. Later it was reported she would allow Dr. Cowles to have custody for four months in the year.

Dr. Cowles, it was understood, steadily demanded that the custody be equally divided, that the children spend six months of the year with him and six months with his mother.

A new hitch developed today as an obstacle to the final settlement. Mrs. Cowles has shaved her divorce proceedings in part on the fact that she was obliged, as she says, to live "with insane people" in Dr. Cowles' Portsmouth sanitarium.

Today Colonel John H. Bartlett, one of Mrs. Cowles' attorneys, said positively:

"We will never allow those two

Why Not Rent That Suite Now?

Just a few days more and there will be a rush for the desirable apartments that are now available. Everyone will have returned from vacation and will rent immediately.

There is going to be a greater demand for suites this year than ever before. Many people who usually go abroad were unable to do so because of the "submarine peril." These enforced residents will have to rent Boston suites.

The number of new apartment buildings is lower this year than in former years. Therefore, there will be a stronger demand for what new suites there are.

Everything indicates that there will be a scarcity of desirable apartments this Fall. Insure yourself against failure to find the apartment you want, and RENT NOW.

The American publishes this week an Illustrated Addendum to its Monthly Renting Register. This will be given away free to prospective tenants, if they will send their requests to the Manager, Real Estate Dept., or if they will call at either

TEUTONS TAKE DEFENCES OF GRODNO

By the International News Service.

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—(By wireless.)—Continuing their drive against the fortress of Grodno, the last strong-hold held by the Russians on their second line of defence, the Germans have forced the Czar's forces to surrender their positions near that fortress on the eastern border of the forest of Bialystok.

Serious resistance is not expected from the forces holding the Russian stronghold. They are expected to maintain a short action for the purpose of staying as long as possible the German advance, and then draw back to make connection with the Dvina line, uncovering Vilna and leaving in German hands the greatest strategic base within the bounds of all Russia.

Vilna, according to plans now made, will become the base of operations for the Teutonic allies.

COMMANDS TWO ROUTES

It is topographically adapted to the most important uses and commands the routes both to Petrograd and Moscow. A strike may be made in either direction from the great strategic bases.

No official confirmation was given today to the report that the treaty between Bulgaria and Turkey had actually been signed, but there is general confidence in diplomatic circles that the two countries have a thorough understanding which will be expressed in the form of a treaty, if such action is not already taken.

This news overshadows everything else in the minds of the authorities, and for the first time in many months they actually regard the danger in the Balkan situation as having passed.

OPEN WAY FOR SUPPLIES

It is pointed out that the Teutonic allies now have only to force a short length territory through Serbia in order to establish communication with Bulgaria, which communication will permit of furnishing supplies to the Turkish army without interruption through Bulgaria. By the terms of the new treaty it is stated that the free passage of supplies is guaranteed to Turkey.

While the pursuit of the Russians east and northeast of Brest Litovsk continued with success, the Austro-Germans are pushing strongly a turning movement against the Russians in Galicia and in the district guarded by the fortress of Lutsk, Dubno and Rovno. The attacking forces are moving toward the north of Lutsk and have placed the strongholds in such dangerous positions that the evacuation of these southern positions is expected to follow at once. In the meantime the Russians in Galicia are retreating before the attacks designed to clear Austrian territory of the last foe.

Man Who Was to Race Dahlgren Girl Is Injured

LENOX, Aug. 31.—While making a practice run on his motorcycle between Lenox and Pittsfield today, George E. Turnure, Jr., whom Miss Katherine Dahlgren was slated to race in her 120-horse-power motor car, was thrown from his machine and so badly injured that he had to be removed to his home in Lenox. His motorcycle was wrecked.

Miss Dahlgren, the brilliant young society woman of Lenox and Philadelphia, was challenged by Turnure to race over the state highway between Lenox and Pittsfield. She accepted the challenge with the proviso that the State Highway Commission give its consent.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Drexel Dahlgren of Philadelphia, and has appeared in court three times it one week for overspeeding. The distance of the race was to be twenty-five miles.

Hall meeting in itself is objectionable. But I do say that the payment of money by the Massachusetts Breweries Company to Dennis D. Driscoll for use either in politics or as the assassin of labor and industry in Massachusetts is objectionable. I personally wish to know how far this thing is going and I believe the people of Massachusetts wish to know and that is why I am requesting you to find out."

Inasmuch as at the Faneuil Hall meeting, letters were read from Mr. McGill and Mr. Cushing and pronounced favorable, you can easily see my interest in this matter.

"I do not know in how many political and official pockets the money of the liquor interests jingles, but I believe the number is large, and I am informed that one of the very highest executive officers in the Commonwealth shares in a retainer of $5,000 a year just for secretly doing nothing for the wholesale liquor dealers of Massachusetts."

Mr. Foss also stated n his letter to Mr. Pelletier that Mr. Driscoll conducted the first meeting of the Trades Union Liberty League under orders and supervision of brewery company officials, and that at that meeting Edward S. Alden, president of the Massachusetts Branch, American Federation of Labor, was present to say tan Driscoll had the endorsement of organized labor.

Mr. Foss called the attention of Mr. Pelletier to Section 358 of the Corrupt Practice Act, defining political committee little girls to live in that sanitarium."

"It was thought this objection might be met by Dr. Cowles agreeing to keep the little girls at some other home during the time they were in his custody.

NURSE IN COURT.

Neither Dr. nor Mrs. Cowles attended today's conferences. Mrs. Cowles sat with her mother at the counsel table in the courtroom, while Dr. Cowles sat in the centre of a group of relatives and friends, chatting and laughing with them.

Miss Allie Arntz, the German governess, who because of Mrs. Cowles' charges was a central figure in the case, was in the courtroom and was in a merry mood, laughing gaily at times.

At one time Judge Pike told the attorneys flatly they could have till noon to adjust theird ifferences. Shortly after that hour the conference broke up and the rumor of a settlement was circulated.

The settlement if the report is accurate, is in large part the result of the efforts of prominent friends of both Dr. and Mrs. Cowles, who wished to avoid publicity.

Dr. Cowles is reported hereabouts to have been conducting his sanitarium along lines similar to the Greenacre colony at Eliot, Maine. He has had as patients many of the Greenacre disciples. Notable among them is Miss Sarah J. Farmer, eighty, the high priestess. Dr. Cowles specializes on nervous diseases. His treatment is technically known as "psychotherapy."

Frank B. Sanborn, the venerable "Sage of Concord," is adviser of Miss Farmer and an intimate friend of Dr. Cowles.

The all-day conference in the judges' lobby yesterday disappointed a crowd of curious spectators, most of them women, who waited impatiently all day for the raising of the curtain. They were afraid the trial would collapse and they would be cheated out of racy testimony.

FIGHT OVER CHILDREN.

The conference was proposed by Chief Justice Pike and he did all in his power to bring about an amicable settlement. He invited counsel for both sides into his private room and talked over the whole situation.

Then Mrs. Cowles, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Harry J. Jaquith of Brookline, Mass., were summoned into the judge's room. The conference lasted from ten until noon, and was resumed at two and lasted until five o'clock without reaching an agreement.

OFFERS CONCESSIONS.

Mrs. Cowles and her attorneys made it clear at the outset that they considered she was entitled to an absolute divorce and the permanent care of the children. Previous conferences held here and in Boston had been equally unsuccessful and Mrs. Cowles and her lawyers were just as determined yesterday.

The young women named in Mrs. Cowles' bill are: Miss Allie Arntz, the pretty German nurse, who hurried back from Germany to combat Mrs. Cowles' testimony.

LAWRENCE MAY AVENGE MAINE CRIPPLE

LAWRENCE, Aug. 31.—While Napoleon Tasse, the aged, helpless paralytic found in the street, is being carefully fed, housed and doctored by the city of Lawrence, an investigation was started today in an effort to have punished the town officials of Athabaska, Maine, who, Tasse says, dumped him in Lawrence to shift for himself.

The aged cripple declared to Judge John J. Mahoney that Joseph Dumais and Frank Sirois, selectmen of the town of Athabaska, kidnaped him, rushed him for two days over all kinds of roads in an automobile, through Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, and then threw him into the gutter at the corner of Lawrence and Essex streets.

FOUND BY POLICE.

There he was found by policemen, weak and helpless. Not knowing what else to do, and realizing the cripple's immediate need of assistance, the policemen took him to the station house. There he was fed, bathed and made as comfortable as possible. In the morning he was taken before Judge Mahoney, to repeat to the Court the story of which he had aroused the policemen.

The old man, who had to be carried into Court, said that he had once lived in Lawrence. He had saved enough to buy a farm, and went to Athabaska, a little town near Aroostook, Maine. He lived on his farm for ten years, until he became so crippled by paralysis that he could no longer farm enough to pay his taxes.

OUTLIVED HIS MONEY.

He told Judge Mahoney that he sold his farm, at starvation price, to Athabaskans. As long as his money lasted, he said, he had no trouble. But he outlived his slender resources. Some of his neighbors continued to care for him, but he did not relish the idea of burdening them and asked for town aid.

When his appeal was made to the town selectmen they told him he would have to get his assistance from Lawrence. For a time they did give him temporary aid in Athabaska, meanwhile looking up their legal claim on Lawrence.

When the selectmen found that Athabaska had no claim on Lawrence, he said, Sirois and Dumais visited him in an automobile, telling him that they were going to take him to a county hospital. They helped him into the automobile and started south.

DUMPED INTO THE STREET.

For two days, he said, the machine was driven at top speed. He was so crippled that he could not hang on, and was bounced all over the tonneau of the auto. The car reached Lawrence at night. At the corner of Lawrence and Essex streets, he says, his kidnapers unceremoniously put him into the street, gave him fifty cents and drove off.

"Go find your friends. Let them take care of you," one of the men in the car shouted as the auto drove off, Tasse says.

The people in the courtroom listened, horror-stricken, as the twisted, gnarled old man mumbled out his story.

"This is the most inhuman act that has ever been called to my attention," Judge Mahoney said. "It is nothing short of brutal."

The Court then order the police to make a careful investigation of the case.

TO PUNISH OFFENDERS.

"If it is shown that this story is true, then the State Board of Charity and the state police should co-operate to punish the offenders. It is the most inhuman case I ever heard of.

"This State seems to be the dumping ground for officials of other States who wish to get rid of indigents. I intend to put a stop to it as far as Lawrence is concerned.

"I hope the newspapers will give this all the publicity possible to let the people of New England know just what kind of town officials the courts are often compelled to contend with."

cial, she pledged herself that NOT ONE AMERICAN SHALL GO OVERBOARD. Whatever the diplomatic form of presentation may have been, Germany DID, without reservation, assume full responsibility for the loss of American lives aboard the Lusitania.

UNQUALIFIED REPARATION.

Her offer of reparation was so unqualified that only a method of determining the amount of damage remains. She requests the United States to suggest some means of ascertaining such damage.

She does NOT disavow the destruction of the Lusitania. This she feels is impossible, for the reason that she has already officially honored the commander of the successful submarine.

Moreover, she vigorously maintains that the giant Cunarder, loaded with munitions, was in reality a ship of war. She realizes, however, that this fact did not warrant the taking of American lives.

When the selectmen found that Athabaska had no claim on Lawrence, he said, Sirois and Dumais visited him in an automobile, telling him that they were going to take him to a county hospital. They helped him into the automobile and started south.

The Court then order the police to make a careful investigation of the case.

TO PUNISH OFFENDERS.

"If it is shown that this story is true, then the State Board of Charity and the state police should co-operate to punish the offenders. It is the most inhuman case I ever heard of.

"This State seems to be the dumping ground for officials of other States who wish to get rid of indigents. I intend to put a stop to it as far as Lawrence is concerned.

"I hope the newspapers will give this all the publicity possible to let the people of New England know just what kind of town officials the courts are often compelled to contend with."

LANSING DENIES VON TIRPITZ BLOCKED ARABIC SETTLEMENT

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31—Suggestions that Grand Admiral Von Tirpitz was acting as an obstacle to a complete understanding between Germany and the United States because he opposed punishment of the officer commanding the submarine which sunk the Arabic were repudiated by Secretary of State Lansing today.

He stated that no intimation that such was the case has so far been received from Ambassador Gerard at Berlin. He also made it very plain that in accepting the assurances conveyed by Ambassador von Bernstorff that "full satisfaction" is to be accorded the United States, this government had reason to believe that all German officials were in accord with the belief that the submarine warfare was to be modified to conform to international law.

The secretary declared that the latest concession by Great Britain, in which she agreed that American owned goods could be imported from Holland and the Scandinavian countries, had not changed the plans for a sharp protest to England directed against her Order-in-Council and her placing of cotton on the contraband list.

This note of protest is practically complete, the Secretary said, although no date has been fixed to return it, as the result of the change in the British policy.

It was admitted in official circles today that both Germany and Great Britain were apparently now bidding for the friendship of the United States. Germany, it is understood, will, within the next ten days, agree to permit the exportation to the United States—if this government will agree to see that the cargoes do not fall into the hands of her enemies —of copper, cotton and foodstuffs urgently needed in this country to relieve the existing stringency.

England is expected also to make further concessions, but until an agreement is reached between Sir Richard Crawford, the trade expert of the British embassy, and Judge Fleming, the United States trade adviser, no announcement of the result will be made public.

World's Series Coupon

Series K, No 3, BOSTON AMERICAN AUGUST 31, 1915

Good for 1 One Vote

This Coupon will not be counted unless presented at the World's Series Contest Headquarters, No. 6 Winthrop Square, Boston, or mailed to that address on or before 5 o'clock p. m., Sept. 11, 1915.

HOW TO SEND VOTE COUPONS—At the end of the eleventh contest period (series "K") collect all votes of that series, then put all your "Series "K" No. 1" coupons together, tie or fasten them in some manner and attach a slip of paper showing the number of "Series "K" No. 1" coupons contained in that package. Do the same with Series "K" No. 2" coupons, and so on up to and including "Series "K" No. 7," the last series of this series. Then wrap them all in one bundle and write or stamp on the outside of this bundle your name and address and the number of consecutive vote sets said to be contained therein. A similar rule applies to the other "K" series.

9 OVERCOME IN 2-ALARM FIRE ON WHARF

Eight firemen and a gas employe were overcome by gas during a two-alarm fire in the six-story building extending from Nos. 33 to 36 Commercial Wharf, early today. They were:

Lieutenant Thomas W. Roser, Engine No. 8.

Captain Walter S. Eaton, Engine No. 44.

Hoseman William S. Stanesewhite, Engine No. 44.

Captain William Sweeney, Engine No. 8.

Hoseman William L. Ryan, Engine No. 8.

Lieutenant George A. Carney, Engine No. 25.

Hoseman William Carroll, Engine No. 8.

Hoseman Michael Aylward, Engine No. 8.

Augustus C. Corbett, a gas fitter.

Roose, Eaton, Stanewhite and Sweeney were hurried to the Relief Station for treatment. The others were treated at the scene by physicians and were afterward sent to their homes.

SECOND ALARM SOUNDED.

The blaze started in the cellar of the building, which is occupied by the Berry Dodge Company, importers, teas and coffees. It was discovered by Patrolman Kennedy of the Hanover street station, who sounded the first alarm. When the apparatus arrived on the scene, the smoke had worked its way through the entire building by means of an elevator shaft.

Senior Deputy Chief Tabor immediately sounded a second alarm. Smoke filled the entire building and was pouring from every window.

A squad of firemen hurried into the basement with a line of hose. While they were endeavoring to get the flames under control, a connection on the gas meter melted.

The men were inhaling the gas fumes. A few of them began to weaken. They were trapped in the cellar, five feet below the level of the sidewalk. Their comrades rushed to their assistance, and, despite the fact they were almost overcome, they carried the forms of the semi-conscious fire fighters to the street. Doctors from the Relief Hospital treated those who were the least affected. The others were rushed to the hospital.

GAS FITTER SAVED.

Augustus C. Corbett, a gas fitter, in the employ of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, was at the scene and volunteered to enter the cellar and shut off the flow. He was unable to turn the valve. He soon weakened and was carried half conscious from the building by firemen.

The flames are seriously handicapped the work of the firemen. An emergency crew from the gas company was summoned and shut off the supply coming from the main.

The flames did not get above the first floor of the building. According to Deputy Tabor the blaze evidently had its origin in the cellar, where a quantity of packing material had been stored. It had been smouldering for some time before it was discovered.

Deputy Tabor also stated that the damage from fire, smoke and water will be at least $15,000.

To Aid Serbian Fund.

Arrangements are being made for a concert in aid of the Serbian Hospital Fund, to be given in Jordan Hall, October 28. Well-known Boston women will be patronesses.

BARNSTABLE TO HAVE SOCIETY HORSE SHOW

A society horse show is to be a feature of the Barnstable Fair this year for the first time in its history.

The fair opens today, and the horse show will be on Wednesday. The Summer colony from Marion and Provincetown will be represented.

Debutantes of last Winter will ride blue ribbon winners, and millionaire farmers will show stock from their imported breeds.

Sixteen classes have been arranged. Among them are the small ponies, polo ponies, single and double driving horses, runabout horses, combination riding and driving classes for both ponies and horses, single hige stepping horses, harness tandem class, single and double farm horses and three classes of saddle horses.

Entries have been made by Andrew Adie of Wianno, who has one of the finest blooded stables in the country.

The Countess von Holnstein of Woods Hole will show two of her blue ribbon winners in the saddle classes.

Miss Mary P. Howard of Monument Beach, who has won blue ribbons in past years at Brockton, and has already captured two blues at Marshfield this year, will show her favorite pair Primrose and Alert.

Henry B. Day, Mrs. R. T. Furman, Miss Hannonor Sawyer and Miss Mary Armstrong, all of Wianno, will be present with the best horses from their stables.

Falmouth will be represented by Miss Margaret G. Marshall, who will ride Betty from the famous Marshall stable. Miss Frances Hood of West Falmouth has entered Lizette in the saddle classes, as has Thomas R. Morse his Whirlwind.

Miss Hazel Marshall of Barnstable will exhibit her well known Kentucky Jumper Satan.

The Cotuit Summer colony will send entries by Miss Ellen and Mary Barton and Mrs. Frank Weston will show her new polo pony Beauty.

Recovers Watch Lost on Vacation

Through the "Police Found" columns of the Boston AMERICAN, Miss Gertrude A. Poore of No. 6 Ashport street, Dorchester, today received the watch she lost on Atlantic avenue when on August 23 she started for Maine for her vacation. Joseph Tuoco of No. 6 Brigham street, East Boston, found the watch, gave it to Patrolman Van Lanningham, who turned it in and it was advertised in the "Found by Police" column in the AMERICAN. Friends of Miss Poore will saw the advertisement, wrote her in Maine, and today she claimed the watch.

Police Warn of Bogus Expressman

The police today issued a warning to business firms that a man is impersonating an American Express Company employe and yesterday collected several bundles from a downtown department store and Washington street. The man is described as between twenty-five and thirty-five years old, seven inches tall, weighing 135 pounds, smooth shaven and wearing one of the company's caps and a badge.

Mrs. Shumway Goes to D. A. R Conference

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin P. Shumway, No. 25 Bellevue avenue, Melrose, returned today from a five weeks' camping trip in Northern Vermont and Canada. Mrs. Shumway leaves Boston on Thursday, September 2, for California as a delegate to the Daughters of the American Revolution conference to be held at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, returning to Melrose about October 1.

Seeks Plans for New Customs Stores

Edmund Billings, Collector of the Port, has received authority from Washington to advertise for sealed proposals for the construction of Boston's new $1,000,000 appraisers' stores building. A total of $1,250,000 has been appropriated by Congress to buy the land and erect the building. A site has already been purchased at the corner of Atlantic avenue and Northern avenue.

U.S. Warships to Resist Attack by New Protection

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The four new battleships and two battle cruisers to be built for the United States Navy will have more than double the present number of compartments in the hull below the armor belt. This, navy experts agree, will increase by 30 per cent. the chances of the vessels floating after being hit under water by either shells or torpedoes.

Plans for such vessels have the approval of the most prominent members of the General Navy Board, of which Admiral Dewey is chairman, and of the advisory council of the Navy Department.

The new type has been adopted after practical experiments with models which were attacked with both torpedoes and shells.

A prominent navy official said today that protective armor as it exists would be ample protection, even against the shells of the Queen Elizabeth type.

GALATA BRIDGE BLOWN UP BY SUBMARINE

ATHENS, Aug. 31.—A portion of the Galata bridge was blown up by an allied submarine, according to a dispatch received here today. The dispatch states that the population and officials of Constantinople are panic-stricken because of the offensive of the allied forces.

The feat of the submarine was most remarkable. In order to make the attack it had to pass through the Sea of Marmora to the Bosphorus. The submarine's attack struck at the very heart of Constantinople.

The Galata bridge spans the Golden Horn between Stamboul and Galata. In Galata are situated all of the principal banks and commercial houses wherein are stored millions of specie and properties.

Offers $10,000 to Roosevelt to Join the Allies

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Theodore Roosevelt has a small fortune awaiting him if he joins the English colors. George Gest, a real estate dealer, living at No. 1646 De Kalb avenue, Brooklyn, will hand over a certified check for $10,000 if T. R. will shoulder a musket and start for France. He said that other German-Americans living in Brooklyn would double the sum.

"I voted for Roosevelt three times," he said. "When he ran for Governor of New York I supported him, and I even went so far as to leave the Republican party in his behalf.

"But he talks entirely too much for me. I want to see him back up some of his remarks. I want to see him start out like a real fighting man, and if he does I have $10,000 I shall hand him."

CARMEN DETAIL WAGES PAID BY R. I. LINE

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 31.—Arthur Starrin of Boston and Frank C. Kimball, foremen of the Bay State repair shops at Campello, Mass., will testify before the strike arbitration board today. Joseph Palma, track worker for eighteen years for the Rhode Island Company, said men getting $2.25 a day are transferred to other foremen and get $1.75 a day for the same work.

R. A. McGarry, president of the Central Federation of Labor, said men doing similar work for the city get $3 a day for nine hours work. Outside contractors, he said, pay as high as $4 a day.

TRAIN WOMEN TO FIGHT, URGES MRS. TUCKER

By the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 31.—The women of the country now are demanding military training. Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, daughter of Gen. John A. Logan, today began circulation of a petition asking that the War Department authorize a woman's camp, to be conducted on the general plan of the business men's camp now in progress at Plattsburg, N. Y., and which is to be duplicated at Fort Sheridan, Ill., and the Presidio, California.

She says that it would be a practical object lesson in women's interest and part in the national preparedness. A course in first aid, signalling, making of bandages and other war supplies and instruction in the use of small arms is suggested by Mrs. Tucker. The first and instruction she believes should be given by the surgeon-general's department of the army and navy.

The whole plan, Mrs. Tucker says is to avoid the waste which occurs in the first few months of war or other great national emergencies.

Mrs. Tucker and her mother, Mrs. John A. Logan, believe that the camp can be established this Fall, but they say if there is not time enough now they would like to encourage the movement so that several camps may be established next Spring.

Burglar Scare in Store.

Early today the burglar alarm in Peter C. Crowley's Atlantic avenue liquor store sounded, and Patrolman Berry led a squad of officers to the place, but found crossed wires to blame.

We bought the entire stock of a New England Dry Goods Merchant, who carried more than twenty different lines of merchandise.

Bought it at our own price as the merchant wanted to retire from the Dry Goods business on short notice, in order to devote his attention to other interests.

Some of this stock came to us for almost nothing and we will almost give it away Wednesday and Thursday. Two days only.

You will hear nothing of this sale after Thursday. There will be nothing left to talk about. And yet this is one of the finest, cleanest and most up-to-date stocks that ever came to our notice. Practically everything new. Certainly everything useful and desirable. There will be eighteen bargain tables with the 5c, 9c, 15c, 19c and 25c prices. This is your invitation to come to Bacons' Wednesday or Thursday and take anything on these eighteen tables at 5c, 9c, 15c, 19c and 25c. Nothing higher than 25c on the eighteen tables. Plenty of other bargains throughout the store at Bacons' famous low prices.

WhatCausesTuberculosis?

In the opinion of many medical authorities, tuberculosis is caused by and actually follows a loss of flesh and strength. "Where there is a deficiency, then the lost salts must be supplied medicinally," says Dr. J. W. Carhart, of San Antonio, in the May, 1913, issue of "Medical Progress."

To supply these salts often is difficult, since in some forms they are not easily assimilated.

In Eckman's Alterative, however, calcium (lime) is so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be assimilated by the weakest stomach, and to this fact much is due its success.

We make no boastful claims, but many cases of tuberculosis apparently have yielded to it. It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so is safe to try. Sold by all Rikes' Drug Stores and leading druggists.

'TWIN BEDS' IS OFFERING AT PARK SQUARE

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

"Twin Beds," a farce comedy by Margaret Mayo, opened the Park Square Theatre, which used to be the Cort, but which is now under the management of the Selwyns, last evening.

They have made the exterior of the theatre very much more attractive since Fred Wright assumed charge as house manager, and have employed a landscape gardener to make the vacant lot beside the theatre look like a garden. Last night the lobby was filled with floral offerings.

"Twin Beds" is an exceedingly lively and thoroughly amusing comedy. It comes here with the prestige of a full year at the Fulton Theatre in New York, and the reason for its prolonged stay in that city is that it is a very good show.

The Selwyns have sent over practically the original company, which is very nice of them, as several other companies are being sent out in the piece to less favored localities.

"Twin Beds" deals with the domestic affairs of a young couple who live in a big apartment house. Over them lives a grand opera tenor and his wife, a large slangy person, who keeps her husband, to whom she refers as "her Wal," in mortal terror.

The tenor's wife is played by Ray Cox, than whom there are no more expert slingers of slang conversation upon the dramatic boards. She also furnishes about half the laughs in the piece. Most of the rest are supplied by the tenor, who is particularly funny if you have ever met a real operatic artist.

The tenor comes home illuminated and gets into the wrong apartment. Fortunately the couple below have twin beds (hence the title) and the beds are on opposite sides of the room.

The presence of the tenor in the wrong apartment during the first two acts, his pursuit by his wife, and by the other woman's husband keep you rocking back and forth in your chair.

Madge Kennedy plays the nice little wife who doesn't know that the man in the other twin bed isn't her husband. She will be remembered from "Lord Nice Brown." She is a cunning, fascinating little ingenue, and already a big favorite in farce comedy. Leo Carillo, as the great tenor who cannot refrain, whatever his predicament, from trying his voice to see if he still has it, is the newcomer in the cast. He is a fine thin and good looking to be the ideal Italian tenor but he works hard and provokes much laughter.

John Westley, as the irritable and jealous husband, was very amusing and so were Jane Seymour, John Cumberland and Alice John.

POPULAR BOSTON MAN FEELS FINE

M. P. Cavanaugh, No. 3 Dartmouth St., Attributes Good Health to Plant Juice.

"There are two sets of organs in the human body," stated Willard's Juice Man who has his headquarters at the Liggett Co.'s Drug Store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, "The alimentary tract, including the liver and kidneys and the small and intestines, the urinary tract and bladder. These two dominate the health of the entire body. Practically all ailments are either primarily or indirectly to their being disordered, and keeping them well organized certainly preserves perfect health." Plant Juice is available in tablet form such conditions as are related by Mr. M. P. Cavanaugh, who lives at No. 3 Dartmouth street, and is a well-known hundredman of this city, and proprietor of the East End Hand Laundry. He stated:

"For the past three years I have suffered with stomach trouble, indigestion and dyspepsia. My food would ferment in my stomach, causing gas and a heavy, bloated condition, belching and severe headaches. I had no appetite and could not keep anything in my stomach. I was nervous and restless and could not sleep at night. I had taken a great many different kinds of medicines, but they did not do me any good. I read about Plant Juice in the papers, and one day that after eating four meals I am feeling fine, and my wife is taking it. It is certainly a great stomach and liver medicine.

"There are numerous symptoms of this trouble that Plant Juice can relieve. Among the first of the following detects alertness of the stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia, sudden fits of wind, bad breath, sick, throbbing headaches, poor circulation, night sweats, that tired feeling, costiveness, coated tongue or a poor complexion.

"The Plant Juice Man is at the Liggett Co.'s Drug Store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

Thin Men and Women

DO YOU WANT TO GET FAT AND BE STRONG?

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on dragging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods, robbing on account of "fresh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract properly assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to scientific druggists almost everywhere which seemingly embodies the missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This preparation is called Sargol, and much remarkable testimony is given as to its successful use. The ingredients in Sargol, which comes in the form of a small non-injurious tablet, takes at first and joining with the digesting food, tends to produce fat in fresh and enriched blood elements so that the blood can readily accept and carry them to the starved portions of the body. You can readily picture the transition that then takes place in previously lacking flesh-making materials and how soon the cheeks fill out, the body hollows steadily lose their unsightliness and begin disappearing and your taking on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh Sargol is harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Leading druggists of this vicinity have it and are authorized to refund your money if weight increase is not obtained as per guarantee found in each large package.

NOTE—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of indigestion, nervousness, etc., have been reported care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.—Advertisement.

ARDEN APPEARS IN 'TODAY' AT MAJESTIC

The Majestic Players began the final week of their Boston appearance yesterday at the Majestic Theatre, presenting the melodrama "Today" with Edwin Arden, the well-known star, in the leading role.

Two large and most appreciative audiences witnessed the production, which is being given here for the first time at popular prices.

The play is a strong and life-like picture of modern society. It portrays the frailties to which a woman will sometimes go to gratify her love of finery and jewels.

The plot, which revolves around a man and wife, is a bit gruesome, yet intensely dramatic. It is replete with thrills and seasoned with some genuine humor.

Edwin Arden, the star, who appears in the role of Frederick Wagner, won well-merited applause by his powerful interpretation of the part. The role of his erring wife, Lily Wagner, a butterfly of fashion, was capably played by Katherine Tower. The latter, a newcomer to Boston audience, won immediate favor by her clever acting.

Mr. Arden and Miss Tower were particularly forceful in the last act, which culminates in Mrs. Wagner's murder at the hands of her husband. The latter, his wealth swept away by business reverses, discovers his wife in the apartments of a woman of the underworld. Simultaneously he discovers that her love for him has always been a sham. This discovery leads to the tragic end of the play.

Margaret Robinson, an old Boston favorite, appeared in the role of Mrs. Garland, the woman who first lured the fickle Mrs. Wagner into evil ways. Her impersonation of the part made a pronounced hit. Charles Green, as Heinrich Wagner, Marie Lander, as Emma Wagner and Edward Morison as Mrs. Faringdon also won applause by their clever work.

"Today" will continue at the Majestic throughout the rest of the week, daily matinees being given, as usual.

Boston Theatre.

"A Royal Family," a five-reel film in which is Ann Murdock, one of the prettiest and most pleasing movie actresses, is also playing a great attraction. At the opening performances the theatre was filled to capacity.

"Neal of the Navy," is a new film which carries pictures of the American navy in war manoeuvres, plenty of excitement and adventure, in which a manly young American is the hero, together with the "Twentieth Century Courtship" and Ann Murdock runs the first three days. These features, and also Bert Fleksford, Charlie Chaplin and the Pathe Weekly proved a hit with yesterday's audience.

"The Blindness of Virtue" will be shown the last three days of the week.

Loew's Globe.

An all-star vaudeville show was presented at the Globe Theatre yesterday. Among the headline features to appear was Kelly and Wilder and Company, in vaudeville's latest musical offering. This act made a decided hit.

Another big feature was Sandy Shaw, the Scotch comedian, who delighted with his repertoire of Scotch comedies. Six Navigators presented many thrilling sensational acrobatic feats. Others were a company of players in a comedy offering entitled "The Red Mill," Gallois and Dupont pleased with their repertoire of songs, and Rouble Sims entertained with his cartoon offering. Among the feature photo-plays was the last episode of "The Romance of Elaine."

Scollay Square Olympia.

One of the best shows of the season was shown to a packed house yesterday at the Scollay Square Olympia, which included the following: Musical Norrises in a novel offering, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Esmonde in the itensely dramatic playlet entitled, "The Soldier from Proprville." Lang and Coulter in darktown frolics, Girls of Madrid in Spanish and Moorish dances, Green, Mellenty and Dale in a clever singing and pianologue number.

"Under Two Flags" and "Monsieur Lecoq," in four reels featuring William Morris playing the part of Monsieur Lecoq, were shown.

The funeral of Tommy Brennan, aged ten, was held this afternoon.

The little white casket of the brave lad who was killed by an auto truck while he was on his way to serve the St. John's Catholic Club nine as their mascot on Saturday, was taken from the flower-decked room in his family home, No. 15 Woodbridge street, North Cambridge, for the high mass of requiem in St. John's Church. Mass was said by the lad's uncle, the Rev. Timothy Sullivan of St. Vincent's Church, South Boston. Mayor Good was among those who attended the funeral services.

The body was escorted from the home to the church, and thence to the cemetery, by six of the child's playmates, Donald Shea, Frank Reardon, Francis Mahoney, Frank Mahoney, Joseph Little and John Quinn.

Tommy was killed while bound for Lexington, where the team of which he was the mascot was to play the Lexington Minute Boys.

All Cambridge mourns the death of the popular boy. Prominent in the floral tributes were those from the Junior Baseball Club, of which Tommy was the captain, and the boys and girls of the Rindge playgrounds, where he was a leader in juvenile sports. There were many bouquets from the police stations also, as Tommy's father is Captain Michael Brennan of Station 4, North Cambridge.

Park Theatre.

Three full hours of high-class photo-plays and appropriate musical accompaniment is the offering at the Park Theatre this week.

Hazel Dawn and George Fawcett, two popular celebrities of the legitimate stage, in the two latest photo-play classics of the Paramount Pictures program top the bill. Surrounded by several other quality numbers such as the special musical program by Charles Frank's Paramount Concert Orchestra, Thomas Malcolm Anderson, the popular Scotch tenor, the Pathe South American Travel Stories.

Hazel Dawn appears in the Famous Players picturization of Edith Bernard Delano's, "The Heart of Jennifer." As usual Miss Dawn looks exceedingly beautiful on the screen, but combined with her radiant fairness, she exerts a power over her spectators that commands their constant interest and attention from the first scene to the last flash of the picture.

George Fawcett, well known to theatregoers through his appearances with Maude Adams in "The Little Minister," is seen in his first picture vehicle, "The Majesty of the Law."

DAVE MARION, THE CABBY, AT WALDRON'S

Unquestionably the most pretentious and novel burlesque production to tour the Columbian circuit this years is Dave Marion's magnificent offering entitled, "Around the World," at Waldron's Casino this week.

Patrons of modern burlesque, familiar with the former productions of this indefatigable showman and unusual purveyor of startling theatrical surprises, naturally anticipate just what "Dave" is going to do next, knowing that he has never offered the same show a second year.

"Snuffy" himself is the bright particular star of this remarkable constellation. Never before has Mr. Marion gathered together such an unusually strong company, including Harry Jansen, one of the highest salaried stars on the "big time" vaudeville world; Barney Fagan, the "daddy" of all the good old-time comedians; Al Weston, Agnes Buehler, Henrietta Byron, Jr., Ida Young, Mlle. Bartoletti, the famous European dancer; Rosie Mack, James Deitrich, Alf Harrington, "The Arion Four" and a dozen others.

Howard Athenaeum.

Those who enjoy a good hearty laugh certainly had the time of their life yesterday at the Howard Athenaeum, where the Hello Paris Burlesquers contributed a show that for real live burlesque has seldom been equalled. George Clark and Ed Clark were seen in the roles of conspirators and they were up and doing all the time. Florence Tuner, Irene Mears, Helen Stuart and others were in evidence throughout the offering.

The house management presented a continuous bill that was fully up to the minute in every detail.

Plays That Remain in Boston Theatres.

SHUBERT THEATRE.

"Experience" is breaking all records for openings at the Shubert. The big morality play seems to have settled down for a run, now that it has been decided by the Mayor not to interfere with any of its scenes. Ernest Glendinning and the big cast are already favorites.

WILBUR THEATRE.

"Nobody Home," the charming little musical comedy headed by Lawrence Grossmith and Adele Rowland, has established itself at the Wilbur and seems likely to remain with us quite a while. Its music is so catchy and the people in the cast so clever that it has caught on from the first.

TREMONT THEATRE.

This is the last week of the big spectacle "The Birth of a Nation." Other engagements at the Tremont compel it to leave Boston after a record breaking run.

Loew's St. James.

A splendid performance of vaudeville features was presented at the St. James yesterday. Among the feature acts to appear was Harry Brooks and Company, in a comedy playlet entitled "The Old Minstrel Man," which pleased immensely. Another big act was Frank Gabby, the popular ventriloquist. Others to appear were Kammeres and Howland, who presented a musical novelty. St Onge Brothers, in a sensational trapeze offering. Parise offered an acrobatic specialty while Delmar, Wayne and Warren Girls presented a neat singing and talking act. Among the photo-plays to be shown was the final episode of "The Romance of Elaine."

Honors for Carrie Nation.

WICHITA, Kans., Aug. 31.—Mrs. Carrie Nation's portrait and her famous hatchet are to be placed in the State Historical Society at Topeka.

BILL AT KEITH'S TENDS TO KILL SORROW

"Hang sorrow! care will kill a cat; therefore, let's be merry," says the program at Keith's, and the bill this week certainly lives up to this standard. The bill is long and up-to-the minute, with almost every act a barrel of laughs. It is certainly a comedy vaudeville de luxe, with a half dozen acts worthy of being called a headliner.

Something really new is the Fashion Show of 1915—a dozen beautiful girls models exhibiting the latest clothing and hats women will wear this Fall and Winter. They show morning, street, afternoon and evening gowns, each by leading modistes of Boston and New York including "Lucille" (Lady Duff Gordon), the Sunday AMERICAN'S fashion designer. Every woman in Boston will be specially interested in this novelty.

Did you ever see Joe Jackson, the tramp of all tramps, with his broken down bicycle? He says not a word, but no one can help laughing at this internationally famous pantomimist. He simply gets all snarled up with his clothes, the cycle and an ancient automobile horn.

Belle Baker sings Irving Berlin's latest songs as she alone can get them over. Every word is distinct. The songs and the singer have the punch.

A pleasant, artistic act is that of J. Warren Keane, who does tricks in an unusual fashion, while Grace White plays the piano exceedingly well. Keller Mack and Ned Monroe are back with their sidewalk talk, which grows funnier every year.

Once more Cook and Stevens are in vaudeville with his mother, father and sister. Then vaudeville had the Four Mortons. Now come the Five Sullys—Pa and Ma, Brothers One and Two and Sister. They make lots of fun and can sing and dance.

An usual singing and dancing act is that of Florence Roth and Adelaide Harland called "evolution," showing a couple of 1840 and another of 1920, with all the changes one may imagine in clothes and manner, and showing the poor, down trodden man of the future.

Modern Theatre.

George Beban appeared at the Modern Theatre yesterday with his admirable and long-familiar character study of Pietro Massero, the poor Italian from the tenements, who, through a cruel mistake, is arrested for kidnaping at a time when he is sick with grief over the death of his own little girl.

It is the first presentation in Boston of "An Alien," an emotionally absorbing photo-play based on Mr. Beban's old success, "The Sign of the Rose." The production is unusually rich in its appeal to the lover of the movies.

It is announced that next week's feature picture will be William Fox's wonderful photo-adaption of "Two Orphans," with Theda Bara in one of the principal parts.

BEN WELCH AND NEW SHOW AT THE GAIETY

Ben Welch and his new show opened a week's engagement at the Gaiety yesterday. There was a big opening crowd, for Welch always gets the followers of burlesque. He is putting on two musical farces, "A Lord for a Day" and "The Hero of Brighton Beach," both very lively affairs full of comedy and good songs.

Welch has selected an excellent company, which includes Marie Moore, Lew Christy, Pat Kearney, Clem Bevins, Minnie Harrison, Geff Phillips, Minerva Clark, Beanie Bartell and Arthur Gordon. He carries a chorus of twenty-four really attractive and youthful damsels who wear stunning costumes and are not afraid.

You go out whistling many of the tunes, the best recommendation for a burlesque show.

DANIELS DENIES HE SAID NAVY "WAS FIT"

Secretary of the Navy Daniels has written Senator Lodge from Bar Harbor, replying to Senator Lodge's criticisms of the navy in the Senator's address of last Saturday.

Secretary Daniels denies he ever said the navy was "fit for any emergency." What he did say, he explains, was that the navy should be made fit.

In answer to specific criticism, he points out the following:

1—That the number of enlisted men in the navy decreased under President Taft, while it has increased 5,824 under President Wilson.

2—That during President Taft's last two years, two dreadnoughts were ordered, as against five ordered in the first two years under President Wilson.

3—That the 62d Congress ordered 12 submarines, while the 63d ordered 26.

The Secretary urges that in any case the development of the navy is not a party but a national matter. He writes:

Senator H. C. Lodge, Boston, Mass.

Dear Senator:

The Boston papers of Sunday, reporting your speech at Riverside, quote you as making this statement: "Secretary Daniels said, 'the American Navy is fit for any emergency.'"

I never made any such statement to anybody at any place at any time. What I did say in my speech in Boston, after the naval review, which made the Governors' Conference and myself so proud of the splendid ships in the review, was: "We should steadily strengthen the American Navy so that it will be fit for any emergency."

We are both agreed in favoring a larger and a stronger navy, and deploring the fact that a too small program during the past years denies us as strong a navy as we would have if every Congress for twenty years had voted as much for new construction as the 63d Congress. If every previous Congress had been as generous to the navy as the Congress elected with President Wilson we would now have almost as many battleships and submarines as the General Board recommended.

As you may not have the facts before you, I am sure you will be glad to have your attention called to the fact that during the first two years of the Wilson administration five dreadnoughts were ordered, as against two during the last two years of Taft's, and the Sixty-third Congress ordered twenty-six submarines as against twelve ordered by the Sixty-second Congress. If every previous Congress had done as well for the navy in these particulars there would be less cause to worry about the navy of today.

I agree with you that the next Congress should increase the number of men in the navy so as to have enough trained men for the new ships authorized. It may be interesting in this connection to state that when President Taft went into office the number of enlisted men in the navy was 47,512. When Wilson was elected President there were only 47,347 enlisted men in the navy, or a decrease of 165 for the four years, though in the meantime Congress had authorized an increase of 4,000.

Since I became Secretary of the Navy, we have increased the enlistments 5,824 men, enough additional personnel to enable us to commission fully twenty submarines, four battleships, four destroyers, six gunboats, six cruisers and three monitors, increasing the number of commissioned vessels forty-one over the number commissioned on March 3, 1913.

These facts should be widely known, because the public is entitled to know what progress has been made in the increase of their navy.

Instead of being satisfied with the navy as it is today, I am strenuously in favor of steadily increasing it in every material unit experience teaches is necessary, as well as increasing the personnel.

There should be no partisan politics injected in a naval program. Your party has had in entire control of government from 1897 to 1913.

If I were disposed to make political capital out of the fact that the navy is not as strong as it should be, it would be easy to say: "If there is lack of preparedness, the fault lies at the door of the party that has been in full control for many years."

The navy will not be strengthened for me to charge your party for neglecting the navy from 1897 to 1913 or for you to seek to lay all the blame for what the navy lacks to my party because in two years it has not created as powerful a navy as we both favor.

Our appeal should rather be made to the American people of all parties to favor a strong and well-proportioned navy, equal to any emergency.

Sincerely yours,

JOSEPHUS DANIELS.

WED FOLLOWING PRESIDENTIAL YACHT ROMANCE

The wedding of Miss Murdock and Lieutenant Delano culminates a romance that began while the bride's father was a Congressman in Washington. The young couple first met on the President's yacht Mayflower.

© CLINEDINST

MRS. HARVEY DELANO.

WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 31.—The wedding of Miss Marcia Murdock, daughter of former Congressman and Mrs. Victor Murdock, to Lieutenant Harvey Delano, U. S. N., took place at the Murdock Summer home in this city.

It will not be until September 4 that Lieutenant Delano and his bride really start on their wedding journey. Then they will sail from San Francisco for Shanghai, where the bridegroom will join the staff of Admiral Winterhalter of the Asiatic squadron.

Miss Murdock made her debut in Washington, and was a leader in the younger set. Lieutenant Delano, until recently, was engineer officer on the battleship Vermont. He is a relative of Rear Admiral Francis Henry Delano, retired, and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1903. They met on the Presidential yacht Mayflower.

Hungry Children Taken from Parents

Special Officer D. J. Shurtleff of the S. P. C. C. and Patrolman Lyman Clark early today went to No. 4 Port Norfolk street, and while the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Collins, were away at work, took from their home five children as neglected. They are Edward, six; Mary, four, and Joseph, seven months old. The police said the baby was sick, all the children were hungry and none was properly clad. The children were taken to the station by street car.

Fined for Refusing To Help Officer

For refusing to assist Patrolman Michael J. Condon when called upon last Saturday night while he was arresting George Marlborough, and at the same time being assailed by a gang of thugs in West Broadway, Lawrence White was found guilty and fined $30. He appealed.

U. S. Offered Army of 100,000 Men by Pennsylvania R. R.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—The Pennsylvania Railroad will offer the United States government an army of 100,000 men. It is the biggest move ever made by any company in the world for national preparedness.

It comes from the highest Pennsylvania Railroad authorities that the railroad is maturing a plan to let every employe take a month's vacation and go to a training camp for military instruction. If all the employes accept this offer, the Pennsylvania legions would greatly outnumber the Union army at Gettysburg.

Chester Lands 470 Refugees at Athens

By International News Service.

ATHENS, Aug. 31.—The American cruiser Chester arrived today at Canea, Crete, with 470 allied refugees. They came from Rieuti. The Chester is under orders to return to that place for more refugees. Another American cruiser is due at Cananea today with refugees from Alexandretta.

Regulars from Forts Begin Hike

Twelve companies of United States regulars from the various forts in Boston Harbor went to Salem today by boat to start on their sixteen-mile hike to Boxford, where they will encamp for about ten days. Lieutenant Colonel William G. Hann is in command of the men, who number over a thousand.

Carpentier Is Again Hurt in War Corps

By International News Service.

PARIS, Aug. 31.—Georges Carpentier, the boxer, who joined the French Aviation corps at the beginning of the war, while barely recovered from his first attack, today was injured again. At Camp Astor, near Bourges, Carpentier fell at the moment of landing. His thigh was fractured, but his general condition was said to be good.

U. S. 'ROOKIES' FIGHT IN CANADA

ROUSES POINT, N. Y., Aug. 31.—This place, the base of the enemy, has fallen. After a few hours' battle along a mile and a half front, extending from Lake Champlain to the Canadian border line, all the Red Army that failed to escape into Canada has been captured, together with machine guns, ammunition and supplies.

Under the crumbling walls of old Fort Montgomery, famed in Revolutionary history as "Fort Blunder," because, through an error, it was built on Canadian land, the Blue Army rests, worn out with the stress of battle in a blistering sun.

The defeat administered to the Reds was costly to the Blues. Three of the deadly fire of the Reds' machine guns men fell by hundreds. In the field and by the road bodies with blue tags fluttering at their throats littered the ground. They were dead. White tags indicated the partially disabled, who were able to creep to the rear. Yellow tags needed the attention of the ambulance corps.

Again the business men's regiment led the fighting and lost heavily. In a bayonet charge across a field, Company G, in command of Captain Ryan, in which were many members of the New York Stock Exchange, drove up to within a few yards of the enemy's trenches and the entire company was destroyed.

At the height of the battle the armored motor car and part of the Third Infantry, under command of Major Normoyle, Fifth Cavalry, crossed into Canadian territory but got back into the United States before they encountered the Canadian troops patrolling the border. They had crossed the border by mistake.

The tide of battle changed when the machine gun detachment of the Third Infantry joined the Blue Army at the end of a 200-mile hike from Tobyhanna, Pa., and immediately went into action. At the same time the bugles of the business men's regiment sounded charge, and with fixed bayonets the provisionals led a drive across a field and the battle was over, the Reds retiring across the border.

The police force of Rouses Point called on Captain Dorey, camp commander, and requested firmly that no battles be fought near the yards of the town, because housewives had their washes out and did not want them disturbed. Captain Dorey said he was sorry but could not pick the scene of action. Then made the policeman sob angry he jammed his hat on his head and threatened to arrest the entire army.

U. S. WARSHIP TO PROBE STORY OF LOST LINER

The United States Navy Department has ordered a gunboat to the island of Cozumel, off Yucatan, to make thorough investigation of the rumor that five Americans from the missing United Fruit steamer Marowijne are held for ransom on the island by Mexican bandits, according to announcement today at the offices of the United Fruit Company in this city.

What Navy Department officials at Washington regarded as conclusive evidence that the Marowijne was lost in the storm that swept the Gulf of Mexico was received today. The commander of the collier Jupiter reported that a teak lattice work vegetable basket had been found on the Campeche bank.

The basket was identified by the crew of the United Fruit steamer Surinam as belonging to the Marowijne. A wooden door frame and other pieces of wood of a similar character were washed up on the Campeche bank and were believed to be from the Marowijne.

P. K. Reynolds, assistant to President Preston of the fruit corporation, said:

"There is no further information regarding the Marowijne, but we have been in touch with the United States Navy Department. They have assured us that they have dispatched a gunboat to the island of Cozumel and that a thorough investigation of the story will be made by officers of the gunboat.

"The Coppename, one of our steamers in the New Orleans service, called at Cozumel and found no basis for the ransom rumor. But the Coppename was there only a short time and her officers were unable to make an investigation such as the officers of the navy gunboat can make. When we hear from the Navy Department on the investigation by the gunboat officers, we will feel that we have trustworthy information.

"The Navy Department has shown a disposition to do all in its power to aid us."

The ransom rumor was the result of a letter received in New Orleans, stating that Captain McLaurin, Wireless Operator H. Labat, an engineer and two passengers reached Cozumel Island safely after the ship foundered August 15, in latitude 18 N., longitude 88. The anonymous writer announced that he was sending Captain McLaurin's watch as proof of the story. The watch has not been received.

Sunday's Aides Sued for Loss of $60 in Wines

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—An eight-page schedule reciting reasons for a claim for damages against the Philadelphia Evangelistic Association, which backed the "Billy" Sunday revival here, has been filed in court. The list sets forth the condition of the home of Colonel Charles M. Keegan, No. 1914 Spring Garden street, which the Sunday party occupied here.

Instead of the original claim of $1,754, Colonel Keegan's demand has risen to $3,043.75. For the first time, authority is found for the accusation that liquors Colonel Keegan left in the home when he turned it over to the Sunday party were missing when he again took possession. The schedule seeks reimbursement for fifty-three quarts of wines, whiskies and cordials, valued at $60.

One of the heaviest items among the claims is $298 for scraping and refinishing of the floors. Another charge is $74 for washing up on the Campeche bank and were believed to be from the Marowijne.

P. K. Reynolds, assistant to President Preston of the fruit corporation, said:

"There is no further information regarding the Marowijne, but we have been in touch with the United States Navy Department. They have assured us that they have dispatched a gunboat to the island of Cozumel and that a thorough investigation of the story will be made by officers of the gunboat.

The money will be collected will be used for the promotion of aviation in the various State militias throughout the country.

Soldier Held for Break at Store

Charles H. Duford of Fort Williams, Portland, Me., was held for the Grand Jury on a charge of stealing clothing and money valued at $167 from Nathan Wolf, at 469 Commercial street, on August 16. Entrance was gained through a window and an attempt made to blow the safe. Duford was arrested in Portland.

VILLA PROMISES TO AID ANY U. S. PLAN

By the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 31.—A positive promise that he will support any plan which the United States eventually may decide on for the restoration of constitutional government in Mexico by General Francisco Villa was brought to Secretary of State Lansing by General Hugh L. Scott today.

The army chief of staff, who had just returned from the border, where he had been in conference with Villa and his chief lieutenants, told the Secretary that Villa had told him flatly that he was willing to eliminate himself entirely from Mexican affairs, if by doing so he will be able to aid in the creation of a stable government.

Villa, however, made it apparent that he was unalterably opposed to any recognition of Carranza unless the cabinet places and general offices of the new government were apportioned so that all factions would be recognized. In addition he filed with General Scott a list of men whom he declared neither he nor the men who affiliated with him could support in Mexico. This list includes most of the men who were prominently identified with the administration of former President Diaz and General Huerta.

Secretary Lansing stated this afternoon that the last invitation to Mexican leaders to participate in a peace conference was delivered yesterday.

Grant Bridgeport Demands.

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Aug. 31.—The American Graphophone Company today granted all the demands of its employes, thus averting trouble on the part of its 2,000 employes. The demands included a forty-eight-hour week and 20 per cent. increase in wages.

Not Compelled to Support Your Mother-in-Law

Mothers-in-law are not entitled to support by their daughters' husbands, under the law requiring children to support dependent parents, according to a ruling by Judge Thomas P. Riley in the Malden Court today.

Mrs. Charlotte Page, charged with failure to support her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Wood of No. 240 Ferry street, was acquitted, and Judge Riley said:

"I want it understood that unless it can be shown that the defendant has property of her own, she is not liable, as the law does not intend to force husbands to support their mothers-in-law. If the Legislature had intended to require this, the fact would have been specified in the statute."

GOOD NEWS FOR THE DEAF

If you are losing your hearing—if you are troubled with buzzing and ringing in the ears—if you find that your nostrils are clogged—if you hawk and spit in the morning—if you have given up hopes of finding relief, just go to Riker-Jaynes, or any other drug store, and purchase one ounce of Fluid Ensenol. Mix this with one pint of warm water. Put two drops in the affected ear every night. Put one tablespoonful in a fourth of a glass of warm water and gargle the throat and nostrils one night and morning. Keep this up for a few weeks and test your hearing and you will be pleased to note the improvement. You will also, no doubt, discover that your catarrh has disappeared and head noises gone.

Rabbit Having a Banner Season Has Place on Six All-Star Lists

"Rabbit" Maranville, the Braves' dashing shortstop, is the only player gaining membership on the six all-Boston clubs built on the strength of current batting averages. He is first among the local shortstops in hitting, scoring runs, smashing out doubles, triples and homers and stealing bases.

This Speaker is listed on every club but the Brain Home Run Club. Navy a single round-trip drive has the Red Sox star poled out thus far this cam-paign. Magee, Lewis and Hooper each own two four-base wallops. None of the other resident subordinates has hit for the full distance.

Of Boston's twenty-four home runs the Red Sox hurlers own eight. "Babe" Ruth has driven out four and Wood, Foster, Tyler and Hughes one each.

The remaining four-base blows were nicked by Lewis, Hooper, Smith, Ma-ranville and Cheney, two each; Gainer, Hoblitzell, Gardner Evers, Maranville and Schmidt, one each.

"Red" Smith, the Braves' brilliant third-sacker, is going along at a speedy clip in the game's every de-partment. He has it on Larry Gard-ner in hitting, scoring runs and in all three long-distance hitting re-spects, and ties the Red Sox player in stealing bases.

The different all-star combinations, so far as work on the offence goes, follow:

Best Batting Club.

Best Run-Getting Club.

Hoblitzell, first base, 41; Wagner, second base, 37; Smith, third base, 45; Maranville shortstop, 43; Lewis, left field, 55; Speaker, centre field, 85; Hooper, right field, 69; Fitzpatrick, utility infielder 15, Magee, utility out-fielder, 54.

Best Two-Base-Hit Club.

Schmidt, first base, 21; Wagner, sec-ond base, 16; Smith, third base, 21; Maranville, shortstop 26; Magee, left field, 27; Speaker centre field, 19; Fitzpatrick, right field, 15; Scott, util-ity infielder, 9; Hooper, utility out-fielder, 11.

Best Three-Base-Hit Club.

Hoblitzell, first base, 11; Wagner, second base, 2; Smith-Gardner, third base, 4; Maranville, shortstop 4; Magee-Lewis, left field, 6; Speaker, centre field, 11; Hooper, right field, 10; Fitzpatrick-Egan-Janvrin, utility infielder, 1; Connolly, utility outfield-er, 4.

Best Home-Run Club.

Schmidt - Hoblitzell - Gainer, first base, 1; Evers, second base, 1; Smith, third base, 2; Maranville, shortstop 1; Magee-Lewis, left field, 2; Hooper, right field, 2 (Speaker, Henriksen, Connolly, Fitzpatrick, Egan, Snod-grass, Moran and Compton have not made a home run.)

Best Base-Stealing Club.

Baseball Notes

SLIM CALDWELL was more than due to win a game, and while he was gaffing the Detroits he did it up in first-class style.

A frequently spilled bromide regard-ing some crack pitcher is this: "If Blank was with such and such a club he'd never lose a game." but who ever saw a pitcher that good?

MANY are the ex-Giants with ball clubs which are higher in the standing than the Giants, among them Snodgrass, Rudolph, Gowdy, Stock, Becker, Demaree, Becker and Bren-nahan.

WHENCE comes all Mamaux's speed? He is a slender youth who will fill out and get fat later, but at present slender. He doesn't get the wrist in a deep Amos Wood for his smoke but he has a long, free step, a beautiful shoulder movement and the whole de-livery is rhythmic.

MAYBE it's a queer turn that history is fixing up for the world's series and a coincidence as well. Philadel-phia and Boston one year and Phila-delphia and Boston the next, but with the leagues reversed. So warbles "Bill" Hanna in the New York Sun.

BRAVES BENT ON BAGGING 2 TODAY

By RIGHT FIELD

The Braves tear into the Reds in a double-header today, the first game starting at 1:30. Stallings' crew is not in the best affected in its aspira-tions by the first postponement owing to wet weather that the new pasture has seen.

The Braves counted on winning one game yesterday and one today and it took only a slight switch to set it, the cry for two games today.

The only jarring note is sounded by Manager "Buck" Herzog of the Cincin-nati, who tells the AMERICAN that he hopes to get an even break in the se-ries and will lay all his plans with that object in view.

Arthus Nehf, the nifty new hurler who was carded to work yesterday, before the umpteenth came, can be counted on to appear in the first game, with "Lefty" Tyler also warm-ing up. Stallings, Evers & Co. are mighty sweet on the new pitching star and it is planned to send him after plenty of games.

LOOKING FOR JAMES.

Although this is the day set for Bill James' arrival from his home on the Coast—Bill the eminent spitball artist who was one of the trio that brought that yellow and gold gon-falon to the flagpole in right-center at Braves Field—he probably will be saved for the Robins later in the week.

James is "right" or he wouldn't be returning to our midst. He is re-porting because he feels that the soreness has left his arm for the rest of the season and he wants to get in there and do his share towards hav-ing the Braves repeat in this glorious year of 1915.

Along about 3:30 we may expect to see Ivan P. Ragan biting off a section of plug and making his way to the box to officiate in the second game.

It rained yesterday and there was one day for certain that "Rescue Tom" Hughes had no little ball game to snatch from peril or set chase for. It looks more like Ragan than Hughes for the second game, with "Tongs" in the bull pen.

Dale, he of the injured hip, or "King" Lear, finisher of Saturday's set-to, are ready to take up the pitching burden for the Herzogs in the first game. Schneider or Mc-Kenery will likely be sent in for the second.

HERZOG ARTER GLORY.

Manager Herzog is a strong booster of his pitching staff, and counts that he will be able to furnish the Braves with some hard propositions in the three games carded on this last visit of the Reds.

The Braves spirit and "pep" con-tinues rampant. The lungs are working as well that the tribesmen are count-ing on sailing right along at the present rate until the cows come home.

With only two defeats for the cur-rent run of the home stay, the Braves have only this week to finish out here at present, so the team that blots their record any further will have to arise early.

The Robins are in the offing, ready to give argument about the next to the top place, but the Braves plan to call at the runner-up post shortly on their march upward.

Rube M. and Cheney Now with Brooklyn

BROOKLYN, Aug. 21.—Manager Wil-bert Robinson of the Dodgers thinks that by landing "Rube" Marquard from New York and Larry Cheney from Chi-cago he has put just the heft he needs on his club to pass the Phillies in a breeze over the plate a winner. Mar-quard cost Robinson $2,500.

Cheney was secured from Roger Bresnahan in exchange for Joe Schultz, a young infielder of promise, and a cash consideration.

Small's Suit Is Settled.

The Red Sox management has set-tled for $250 the $5,000 suit brought by Joseph Small of Boston to recover for personal injuries alleged June 15 last by falling on a defective step in the right field pavilion at Fenway Park.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

By RIGHT FIELD—

THE Braves and Phillies won't clash until September 29, when Alison will be the scene of battle. It may prove instruc-tive to note what the schedule-makers expect of Moran's men, whether they hold their recent pace or not.

THE Phillies are about through with their games at home. They wind up today with St. Louis and then are off to the road. The only other home series is that opening September 8 with the Giants.

WEDNESDAY the Phillies are at the Polo Grounds. The dates on which they open their different series on the road are: September 6, Brooklyn; septem-ber 11, Pittsburgh; September 16, Cincinnati; September 19, St. Louis; September 23, Chicago; September 28, Brooklyn. Then the Mornites come here and that Monday Dell will be cele-brated, Fitchburg denizens hav-ing the program about made up already.

BOSTON "fans" may get a lot of good reading out of see-ing what happens to the Quincy City outfit when it swings around the circle.

THE Red Sox record since leav-ing home is open to Chicago, August 18, is ten won and four lost. The series with the Ath-letics, with our Sox moving at their present giddy gait, is counted as being "pretty soft."

PRESIDENT LANNIN keeps on smiling and has cause there-for.

GOOD news, that, about "Smoky Joe" Wood's arm not being so far off after all. He counts on going to Philadelphia to take a shot at the Connie Macks this week.

"BILL" PHELON, the good au-thored expert with the bolts, says a man can pick up informa-tion almost anywhere. He points to the fellow who learned to be a porco-Phillis dancer by see-ing performance of "Romeo and Juliet."

MANAGER "BUCK" HERZOG of the Reds hasn't made up his mind yet as to whether he will join the National League stars Captain Evers of Our Boys is to lead on a tour after the World's Series, with the big stars of the Ban Johnson circuit as opponents.

THE University of Michigan seems to have turned out a magna cum laude ball player in the person of "Sizzling George" Sisler. We have seen how much at home he is at first and in the outfield and how he jumped in-to the box a while back and hurled young Morton of the In-dians, one of the good ones this year, into the sting of defeat. Now the sizzler pins one onto Walter Johnson, uniting another chapter of hard luck for the Kansas cyclone.

SAY, "Smoo," go on and bat .400 for us for a few more weeks.

THAT .500 batting mark for the week achieved by Cap Evers is not so bad, either.

THE chances of the Giants winning the pennant this year are reduced to nebulous, but they may have a deal to say regarding where the pen-nant goes. They have nine games with the Phillies and eight with the Braves.

RED SOX DUE IN PHILLY THIS P. M.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—The Red Sox are due in Philadelphia on a late afternoon rattler from Toledo, where they played the Town Pats, including a cousin of Roger Bresnahan, the Cub chieftain, and eight other youths, yesterday, after bringing their highly successful Western tour to a close in Cleveland Sunday.

The Phillies and Cardinals are un-decided to clash in a twin bill on the Huntington avenue grass, and if Bill Carrigan arrives early enough with his athletes they will hop off the train at the station opposite the Phillies' home and take a personal squint at the club this commonwealth sincerely trusts plays the Bostonians for the blue-ribbon title in October.

As for the Red Sox they are due to get in four games with the mirthful Macks during their stay, with the first contest going on at Shibe Park to-morrow. This will keep them here until Saturday evening when they will hie back to Boston and get in a day's rest at home before engaging in morning and afternoon combats on Labor Day with the Yankees.

"Wild Bill" Donovan will beat it with his slipping outfit after next Tuesday's matinee. Then our Macks will go it with the Red Sox.

SOFT GAMES COMING.

So there's a bunch of very soft set-tos in store for the fast-traveling Red Sox, and, unless they slow down to a walk they ought to run up a safe lead on the Tigers by the time they are through their gamboling with the much-punched families of Mack and Donovan.

"Stuffy" McInnis, who took French leave when the Aetnetics were out West and who hasn't been seen by Manager Mack in about a fortnight, is due today from his home in Gloucester. It is understood that "Stuffy" has been at the bedside of a very sick parent, but if such is the case he has not kept Mack acquainted with his doings. Be it known that McInnis is in for a sweet little call down when he confronts his boss.

At that, it looks as if "Stuffy" will get in the Boston games, and that means the Athletics will be their strongest, which really isn't saying a whole lot.

The Athletics are creeping along at a snail's pace. Everybody but Mack is worrying. Connie's optimism re-minds all disgruntled ones that he stated during the Winter season that this wasn't going to be his year.

MACK ISN'T WORRYING.

The angularly constructed boss of the Athletics is confident he has ad-other winner coming. He is stuck on several of his recruit hurlers, notably Bowman and Shawkey.

Mack declares all will be serene with his club by next Spring. As for the present it looks very much as if the Red Sox would sweep their lead at the expense of the down and out local member, while the Tigers and White Sox are having it out in Chi-mer and tongs fashion out in Detroit.

Right now Philadelphians are in-terested in the game fight the Phillies are making under Pat Moran, a Pittsburg boy, to hold on to their present advantage in the National League race.

The Red Sox, though great favor-ites here, will scarcely do much busi-ness; in fact, Secretary Riley will be a happy young man if his share of the receipts amounts to enough to pay the hotel bill and buy railroad tickets back to Boston.

Lee Axworthy Meets Peter Scott Today

YONKERS, N. Y., Aug. 21.—The Grand Circuit meeting at the Empire City track here opens today with a race in which Lee Axworthy, 2:03¼, un-beaten this season, and Peter Scott, 2:03¼, winner of five consecutive races, are to compete with half a dozen other trotters for a purse of $5,000.

Another feature will be the attempt of Director L, 1:58, to lower his own world's record for pacers. The meet-ing will continue four days.

Red Sox Gained Half-Length on Tigers in West

Despite the fact that the inter-sectional battling in the American League, coming to a close Sun-day, ended with the West bagging 29 of the 50 battles fought, the Red Sox were high for both tiers.

The Red Sox, with a notch of 10-4, gained one winning game on the Tigers and one full game on the White Sox.

The miserable work of the Mirthful Macks is what makes the record of the West look so bogue, the club only winning two of its 12 games. The summary:

M'INNIS WILL BE IN BOSTON GAME

By International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—Instead of taking the trip to Cumberland, Md., with the Athletics yesterday, Manager Mack returned home and witnessed the game between the Phillies and the Cardinals. With reference to "Stuffy" McInnis' absence from the club, Mack said:

"I do not know why McInnis has acted as he has. I expected to find him in Detroit and then in Cleveland, and when he did not appear in St. Louis, I wired him. Instead of answering by telegraph he wrote me that he would be on hand for the opening game here with the Red Sox. McInnis, I expect, will have a good explanation for his staying at home."

Mack said the release of "Chief" Bender did not surprise him in the least, as he understood the Federal League was dropping all high-priced ball players and then resigning the player for a lower figure, as it did in the case of Russell Ford some time ago.

"HERE'S the receipt, Mr. Weller," said Mrs. Bardell, "and here's the change, and I hope you'll take a glass of something, if it's only for old acquaintance sake."
If you have ever tasted the rich hop flavor of Pickwick Ale you will always call for it, for old acquaintance sake.

BRITTON - LEWIS IN BIG CLASH AT ATLAS

ATLAS A. A. PROGRAM.

Jack Britton, Chicago, vs. Ted (Kid) Lewis, England, twelve rounds.
Walter Butler, Revere, vs. Al Thomas, New York, eight rounds.
Mike Crowley, Malden, vs. Charley Shepperd, New York, six rounds.
Teddy Murphy, Boston, vs. Young Cooper, Providence, six rounds.

BOXING lovers should be afforded their banner treat of the season at the Atlas A. A. tonight. The twelve-round fuss between Jack Britton of Chicago and Ted (Kid) Lewis of England comes up on paper an event way out of the ordinary.

Britton, a combination fighter and boxer, has made good here on several occasions; in fact, the Danny Morgan starter has never pulled a flivver in Boston.

Lewis has showed his wares in this vicinity only once. That was against Mike Glover and to say that the Britisher registered a hit is putting it very mild. He is the boxer pure and simple and a riot when it comes to displaying speed, cleverness and glitter. This kid is the modern-day Abe Attell as speedy and tricky a ringster as the Queensberry game has produced since the little Hebrew began going down hill.

Britton, as a lightweight, was as fast as the next, but since graduating into the welterweight division the extra poundage has dulled his footwork quite a bit. But Jack was ever the combination workman; the bang, true hitter, as well as the phaseton. Nowadays, rugged battling is his chief forte, and, if it is in him to give Lewis a decisive beating tonight, don't be a bit surprised if a knockout comes.

LEWIS has trimmed several suckers since giving Glover a boxing lesson at the Atlas A. A. several weeks ago. When here he showed to the best of advantage. His all-round performance was dazzling. It had Glover drunk and the "sports" in attendance dizzy.

Lewis' edge for the verdict of Referee "Patsy" Haley tonight is to get off sawing, just as he did when he clashed with Glover; to flit in and out in front and stay there. If he's caught by Britton, and slows up, he's in for a trimming, unless he's a much tougher hatter than Boston "fans" believe him to be.

All in all, it's a classy set-to; one of the best booked at the Atlas A. A. in many a day. In many it appears more or less peculiar that both Britton and Lewis are taking a chance in a decision bout, when it's possible for them to work elsewhere than Boston and have the no-decision verdict hauled up at the conclusion of their performance.

THE prelims are good ones. In the semi-windup Walter Butler of Revere, a boy who generally pleases, goes on with Al Thomas of New York. Thomas, a Ghetto lad, is here under the guidance of Jack Manz. He has no such good ones as Sam Robideau, Mike Wagner, Young Terry, Frankie Mack, Willie Beecher and Johnny Martin.

In the other bouts Mike Crowley of Malden, making his bow as a professional, clashes with Charley Shepard, quite a nifty New York miller, while Teddy Murphy of Boston hooks up with Young Cooper of Providence. The last named is being piloted by the irrepressible "kid" Zissell, and, according to the Kid, is a bear cat.

JOHN J. REISLER of New York, who manages Joe Azevedo, the Coast lightweight among a string of boys, writes the AMERICAN stating that he is anxious to match his charge with Frankie Callahan before the Atlas A. A.

Reisler claims Azevedo had all the better of Callahan when they met in Memphis. In his opinion a bout at 128 pounds ringside would afford the Atlas A. A. members a great show.

DUDLEY MUDGE TURNS IN THE LOW CARD

By "CHICK" EVANS.

Four Times Western Open Champion and America's Expert in Wool.

DETROIT, Aug. 31.—The scores yesterday were very high and many good golfers fell by the wayside. There was a cold wind blowing and the course, difficult in the best of weather, taxed skill to the utmost. L. E. P. Allis, 3d, D. Warren Cockran, Fraser Hale and Walter Egan are all well-known golfers failing to qualify.

The surprise of the day was the fine playing of Dudley Mudge of the Town and Country Club of Minneapolis. He won the gold medal with a score of 79—72—152, which, figuring the weather conditions, was golf of the highest class.

GARDNER'S GOOD GAME.

Chicagoans rejoiced to see "our own townsman, Robert Gardner, of the Hinsdale Country Club, come in for second place, with the good, consistent score of 76—74—150. In all five Chicagoans qualified and Western prospects look bright, but there is a great and mysterious thing in golf called the "luck of the draw" and this apparently has failed the West.

The tournament, it was hoped, would place the West and the East in a competition on equal terms. Unfortunately the luck of the draw has decreed otherwise and four of the five Chicagoans find themselves in the first eight and begin to slaughter each other this morning.

This condition naturally will greatly interfere with Western interest in the tournament and largely destroy the sectional character of the event. The God of Chance, however, is a queer personage and totally uninterested in what's going to be what.

The feature matches today will be between Mudge and Guilford, and Sawyer and myself.

OUIMET TO THE FORE.

Ouimet and Sawyer were about the only stars who seemed to cut loose in the qualifying round. Ouimet went out in 37 in the morning and came in in 40. His afternoon cards read 40 and 38.

Jerry Travers plays George A. Crump, the Philadelphia star, in the first round. Ouimet drew W. H. Gardner, 2d, of Buffalo. If Travers and I should be successful in our games today and tomorrow we must play Thursday, whereas Ouimet, if not successful in an unexpected setback, will remain idle until Saturday.

GERMAN STAR IS M'LOUGHLIN FOE

FOREST HILLS, L. I., Aug. 31.—Everything is in readiness for the opening of the twenty-fifth annual amateurs' tennis championship singles today on the twenty-four turf courts of the West Side Tennis Club. Rain knocked out the sport yesterday, but the experts are confident that they will be able to get under way today. It began to rain just as the lines were being marked, and pretty soon the spacious enclosure bore a striking resemblance to a miniature lake.

The return matches between the East and West will be played Friday and Saturday, September 10 and 11. President Myrick announces that Harold H. Hackett, former Davis Cup captain; Craig Biddle of Philadelphia and Edwin Grant of Boston have been appointed a committee to select the Eastern team.

Maurice E. McLoughlin will make his first swing of the racquet in his effort to regain the championship in the first of the matinee matches scheduled at 2:15. He will play Ernest Fritz Kuhn, the German player.

Two of the former Davis Cup players—Harold H. Hackett and Frederick R. Alexander—will take the grandstand courts at the finish of the other battles. Hackett will play William M. Johnston, the young Californian, who has been performing so ably, and Alexander and Nathaniel W. Niles, the Longwood Club crack, will be opponents.

The schedule for today's matches:

Albert Elliott.

Candidates in the AMERICAN World's Series contest all realize now that there is no time to lose and no votes to be overlooked if they want to be one of the fortunate twenty-five fans that will witness the great 1915 World's Series games with all expenses paid.

Only twelve days remain in which vote coupons will be printed, the last coupon appearing Sunday, September 12. Candidates will then have until Monday, September 20 at 5 p. m. to make the final deposit of votes. Time is drawing very close, and it behooves all candidates to hustle. That means vote gathering speed from now until the finish, if you wish to be among the AMERICAN'S twenty-five fans who will enjoy the World's Series games.

A hard working fan, who is not wasting any time in piling up every vote possible and who is determined to be among the twenty-five AMERICAN fans, is Albert Elliott, No. 172 Saratoga st., Lawrence, Mass.

Wolgast and Hommey Have Saucy Set-to

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—"Packey" Hommey, the Italian lightweight, and Ad Wolgast went through ten rounds of the most unenviable milling seen in months, but for slugging it was a beaut of an affair. The scrap took place at the Clermont Avenue rink in Brooklyn.

They just stood tos to toe and walloped each other like little demons. "Packey" got the first advantage when he closed Wolgast's glim in the seventh, but Ad evened that up by stashing Hommey's mouth.

In the last two rounds both were so tired that they rested at every opportunity and at the final bell the pair was tickled to death.

Phil Bloom upheld the honor of Brooklyn in the ten-round semi-final with Joe Azevedo, the conquered youth from the sunny Pacific slope. Philip hit Joseph here, there and everywhere and gathered the honors therefor.

Dundee Too Speedy for Milwaukee's Pet

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 31.—Johnny Dundee lifted the lid off the Milwaukee boxing season and almost lifted the head off Richie Mitchell of Milwaukee in the first couple of rounds. The New York Italian started like a whirlwind, flattening the Badger Pride once in the first round and twice in the second spell.

Dundee slowed up a bit from the second canto on. Mitchell's face was sadly mussed at the finish.

RING RESULTS

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 31.—Frankie Mack of Beachmont and Walter Mohr of Brooklyn went twelve stiff rounds to a draw at Fire Hall.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—Jack Dillon of Indianapolis and Bill Ali battled ten rounds here with Charley Grindo of California. It was Dillon's fight all the way.

GLOUCESTER, Aug. 31.—Walter Butler of Revere knocked out Young Lewis in the tenth round of their bout at the Lewis A. C.

Gotham Has Packey Almost at Weight

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—"Packey" McFarland and Mike Gibbons, who will meet before the Ocean A. C. in a ten-round bout September 11, have arrived in town from the West and both express confidence that they are in the best of shape.

"Packey" says he is within a couple of pounds of the stipulated weight, and will have no trouble in making the figures called for in the contract. He looks pretty fit, while Gibbons seems to be in wonderful condition.

Mrs. Barger Wallach Wins.

NEWPORT, Aug. 31.—Finals in mixed doubles at the Casino for prizes donated by Clarence W. Dolan were won by Mrs. Barger Wallach and Craig Biddle, who defeated Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas and William P. Bigelow, 6—3, 7—5, 6—4.

WILEY CHOICE IN TITLE BIKE RACE

The stage is all set for the world's motor-paced championship race, which will be decided at the Revere cycle track tomorrow night, and everything points to make this sixty-two-and-one-half-mile contest one of the greatest international struggles in cycling history.

Four different countries will be represented. America will have two entries, George Wiley, the national champion, and Clarence Carman, his predecessor.

Victor Linart will fly the Belgian colors. George Seres will ride for France and Tony Colombatto will uphold Italy's reputation as a producer of bike stars. Each rider will wear his national flag.

Wiley is the opening favorite, with Linart as second choice. Many are ready to back Carman, because of his sensational spurts and well-known gameness, while Colombatto is being strongly seconded by the Italian bike followers.

All five riders are encamped at Revere. They had hoped to get in a good workout yesterday, but the rain "spiked" it. If the weather is favorable today the men will get in two practice sessions, one in the morning and another in the afternoon. They have been assigned separate shifts, so as to prevent brushes.

Manager Butler reports a big advance sale. He has disposed of practically all the grandstand seats. That the event will be a success is an assured fact.

Two Crack Runners Suspended by A. A. U.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—A sensation was sprung in athletic circles when, acting upon an account of a "fake" race at Elton, N. Y., August 21, Jacob W. Stumpf, chairman of the Metropolitan A. A. U. registration committee suspended, pending further investigation, Donald W. Lippincott, the University of Pennsylvania sprinter and Hal Helland of Newark, N. J., a former member of the Xavier A. A.

The power to suspend these men is contained in the ruling relating to suspicious circumstances, which states that if in the judgment of the committee or any member thereof, sufficient evidence is presented to make the status of any athlete a matter of reasonable doubt, an investigation may be started without the presentation of formal charges.

Lippincott and Helland were notified by registered mail of their suspensions.

Horace Taylor in Form.

Horace Taylor secured a leg on the South Shore championship tennis challenge cup by defeating F. M. Currier, 6—4, 6—4, 6—3, and followed it up by vanquishing Josiah Wheelwright, 6—4, 6—3, 6—3.

La Roche to Enter Harvard.

"Chet" La Roche, the former Dorchester High athlete, who played on the Phillips Exeter football eleven last Fall, will enter Harvard next month.

First Round Matches in U. S. G. A. Tourney

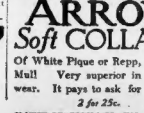
'Tack' Hardwick Off to Give Navy Gridiron Winner

Huntington R. ("Tack") Hardwick, all-around star of the Harvard football team for three seasons, left today for Annapolis, where he is to coach the Navy eleven.

The Middies have already had considerable gridiron work, the pickup, or the first year men, having been given daily practice all through the Summer.

Hardwick is loath to talk on the prospects of Annapolis, but hopes to turn out a good, game, fighting eleven.

He expects to have one or two of his Harvard mates give him assistance from time to time in his efforts to turn out a combination formidable enough to defeat the Navy's greatest rival, West Point.



Of White Pique or Repp, or plain Mull. Very superior in fit and wear. It pays to ask for Arrows.

Police League Game Today.

The Boston and Cambridge teams of the Massachusetts Police League clash on the old South End Grounds at 11 o'clock this morning. Boston, with only one more game to play, has bagged twelve of the thirteen contests, and has the pennant safely won. Either Thompson or Connelly will pitch, with Mahoney, the old English High catcher, behind the plate.

Player Killed on Field.

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 31.—Ernest E. Wyss, twenty-two years old, is dead here as the result of injuries received in a collision in a baseball game Sunday. Wyss was catching for an independent team and was knocked over when a base runner slid into the plate. He finished the inning before retiring from the game.

The Romance of Famous Gems

The Great Mogul—The Diamond That a Queen Was Not Rich Enough to Buy

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE literature of gems is, for the most part, scattered through the narratives of travellers, among disconnected chapters of history, in memoirs of royal and imperial court, and in encyclopedias. The basilisk eye of some great diamond flashes in the dark background of almost every famous event in the history of Southern Asia since Europeans began to explore it.

The names of some of these celebrated stones have become household words, and the sight or sound of them awakens feelings of only mildly curiosity, occasionally mingled with the thrill of mystery. Such a gem is the Great Mogul, which has happily been called "the meteor of diamonds."

Like the Regent and the Koh-i-noor, the Great Mogul was a product of the Golconda district, having been found in the Cani Mine, which was famous for its huge diamonds, though none ever approached this one in size.

When discovered it is said to have weighed not less than 787 karats, but it was reduced by a gem-cutter to 280 karats. When it came from the cutter's hands, according to the only description and drawing which we have of it (these of Tavernier, the celebrated traveller, who was an expert in gems), it was a hemisphere-

The Great Mogul is a diamond shaped like a gumdrop, a little larger and far heavier than an ordinary cubic lump of sugar, and was cut down from a huge diamond crystal found in the Golconda mine in India.

ical dome with a flat base, apparently an inch and a half in diameter, and an inch and an eighth in height, having its surface cut into a "rose," with about 180 facets.

The first owner of the Great Mogul who can be traced is Emir Jemla, who, according to Tavernier, was a kind of secret partner in the Golconda mines, and, as such, apparently got the lion's share of the output, for he became celebrated for his immense stores of gems, and possessed, according to general belief, so many diamonds that he counted them "by the sackful."

Amid the intricacies of Oriental intrigue it came about that the Emir Jemla found himself obliged to purchase the favor of the Shah Jehan of Delhi, by presenting to him the paragon of his collection, the matchless diamond whose fame was already spread abroad over India, although few persons had ever seen the stone.

In 1661 Tavernier visited the court of Delhi, where Aurungzebe, son of Jehan, was then reigning, and, as a great favor, he was permitted to see the monarch's collection of gems, among which, and chief of which, was the stone now known as the Great Mogul. Tavernier, as has been already remarked, was an expert in gems, and his delight can be imagined when he was allowed to take in his hand and closely inspect "the finest diamond in existence."

The famous traveller's description of the big diamond electrified his readers in Europe and has been quoted and enlarged upon thousands of times by modern writers but so far as any record exists the stone itself has never since been seen! It flashed into view for an instant and then flashed out again truly like a meteor.

Naturally, the stone's disappearance has enhanced its fame, and has caused numberless legends, pure inventions of the imagination, to cluster about it. Attempts have been made to identify it with the Kohinoor and other celebrated Indian gems, but these have been shown to be groundless, for Tavernier's description and drawing, which nobody seriously challenges, show that the stone possessed characteristic features which would prevent it from being confounded with any other known.

Was it stolen, and then cut up into smaller brilliants, in order to baffle detection, or was it destroyed in some of the wars, or political upheavals, or palace intrigues, which were so frequent in Hindustan?

These are among the unanswered questions that have been asked concerning the fate of the Great Mogul. Writers of romance, of course, have seized upon so notable a mystery as a subject for their invention, and the Great Mogul has played the imaginary part of a mystic eye, of unparalleled brightness, gleaming mysteriously in the darkness of a many-columned cave on the forehead of an Indian idol.

There is a quaint quality in Tavernier's account of the unskilful cutting to which, in his opinion, the great gem had been subjected:

"It was Hortensio Borgis, a Venetian, who cut it, for which he was sufficiently badly recompensed, for when it was seen what he had done he was reproached with having ruined the stone, which should have remained heavier, and, instead of paying him for his work, the king fined him 10,000 rupees, and would have taken more if he had possessed it. If Sieur Hortensio had understood his business he would have been able to get several good pieces from this stone without doing any wrong to the king, and without having the trouble to grind it down, but he was an unskilful diamond cutter."

Thomas Pitt, grandfatser of the Earl of Chatham, is said to have been offered the Great Mogul diamond when he was Governor of Madras. The price is said to have been fixed at $445,000, and Pitt is believed to have credited its real value at that time at $4,000,000. His patriotism would have liked to see the diamond go to Great Britain, but her funds were generally at a low ebb—for royalty—and he was not equal to the strain of buying the wondrous stone.

The Story of a Doctor's Wife

Told by the Wife Herself

No. 6—Connie Quits Settlement Work After Her First Marital Dispute

"AND so they were married and lived happy ever after"—and that is the ending of love stories in fairy tales. In life, marriage is the beginning of the story. There are gay chapters and sad ones, pages of mirth and lines of darkest gloom. But I suppose most loving women would choose again the same hero for their romance if it were given them to begin anew.

Our honeymoon was perfect. We spent a quiet week in a little inn up among the foothills of the Adirondacks. We did not need the stimulation of sight-seeing. Neither of us could imagine a honeymoon that meant packing up and unpacking and adjusting ourselves to a panorama of new scenes when we had the mystery of each other's natures to give glorious variety to our days. Instead of spending our energy exclaiming over Congressional libraries and Horseshoe Falls, we gave it all to the wonders of life and love.

At the end of that week we came home to set about the business of life. We lived in my apartment and later continued the practice of economy in his bachelor diggings. And during the intervals of my settlement work I began to look around for a place big enough to house us and give Peter an office and laboratory and waiting room, and still not so big as to demand a corps of servants and a year's earnings.

HOUSE HUNTING

House hunting in New York! That may be an easy task for the woman who goes in her motor to look at five thousand dollar abodes. But it is vastly different when you are afoot—to save car fares and taxi bills, and are trying to get a place fine enough to impress even new patients for your doctor-husband and simple enough not to scare off his plain, old ones.

At the end of a week I had looked at forty apartments and had found none. And I had a feeling that my settlement work was suffering. That thought troubled me gravely, but the climax came at dinner one night.

"Connie!" said Peter, hacking away at a round beef that would have been better for another half hour in the oven, "How many jobs do you feel competent to carry? Home-maker, house hunter and settlement worker during the day—and sympathetic wife in the evening. Don't you think you have to slight any of them?"

His smile was quizzical, but I knew he thought me an over-ambitious—failure.

"I could send for Lenore to come up from Connecticut and do the housework, and I think I'd better take a week's leave of absence from the Settlement, while I find an apartment and get settled in it," I began.

HIS DECISION

"I won't have that little Wallis girl around the place," Connie. She must stay on the farm until the Nurses' class opens in September. This is my home, my haven of rest, not a foundling asylum.

"Lenore Wallis is taking too much out of you, and she isn't worth it. She is more world-wise than you are, and she's hiding something ugly. What is more, you mustn't count on her—she'll never prove grateful. Now, remember, little woman, that's my final word about her."

But it wasn't—as I remembered sorrowfully long after.

"Well, I'll ask for a week's leave, since you won't have Lenore. But, indeed, Peter, you are wrong about her. She's only a child, and a dear child who looks on your wife as her one friend. Please don't ask me to desert her, I can't."

"Connie, we've come to the place for a little plain talking. I married a wife—not a Settlement worker and a Lady Bountiful. I won't ask you to give up your interest in the Wallis girl, but I do want you to get more than a week's leave of absence from the Settlement while you look for a home.

"I want you to resign—now you can MAKE a home. No woman can carry two jobs at once without slighting one. And no man worth the name wants to share his wife with her work."

ANTAGONISM

Peter's tone sounded as hard and impersonal as if he were discussing the ability of a new cook. My quick temper flared and I looked at him with an antagonism as strong as the very attraction he had for me.

Every woman has at some time felt that reaction from her love, that sex-antagonism that makes hermits and cloisters and even murderers. And then, with the quick control of feelings that work and education have taught woman, I said quietly:

"Your work takes you from me, Peter, and I don't try to interefere. I like Settlement work, and I hate dusting and making beds and washing pots and kettles. Congenial work pays me twenty dollars a week. A quarter of that sum will hire some one to do the housework I don't enjoy.

"Since I can pay my own maid, I don't see why you begrudge me one. I'm not extravagant, only efficient. I'm not asking favors, only the right to my own freedom as an individual. And I'll come out at least ten dollars ahead a week, even allowing for the maid's keep and possible extravagance."

It sounds like a political debate as I write it down. I knew so little of man-nature then that I offered my husband cold logic when he wanted a few tears and some loving coaxing.

"Twenty dollars a week!" Peter fairly sneered it. "You hardly need a man to take care of you."

"I didn't marry to be supported!"

"No? Just why did you marry? You must have your reasons neatly tabulated since you work all your theories out so efficiently."

HIS TENDER LAUGH

"Peter Drayton, I married you because I—because I thought I loved you—and because I thought you needed me to make your life complete!"

Peter laughed his wonderful, tender laugh. That hurt and brought bitter tears to my proud eyes.

"You can laugh," I cried wildly and began to sob.

"Yes, dear. I can laugh at your feminine logic. You married me because you thought I needed you; and then, when I tell you that I need you here in my home, all the time; when I say that I want my wife with all her best energies and sympathies fresh and ready for me, she thinks me a tyrant who wants to interfere with her freedom as an individual.

"I don't want you to do uncongenial work. I want you to direct the work of my home and inspire it. I can pay for the maid, dear. Why, you belittle my manhood by wanting to go on with your Settlement work for money. If you find interesting cases, help them, by all means. But when I come tired and worn from work, don't let me find a woman beset by abstract problems of her own. Let me find a wife tender and loving and ready to give me the stimulus of her vitality and sympathy."

I was not convinced. I liked my work and I wanted to go on with it. I felt sure it would not force me to take from Peter anything that was rightly his.

But Peter's voice sounded in my heart and his arms were strong and yet tender about me.

"Will you do this for me, dear?" Peter's lips were warm on mine.

That very night I wrote my resignation to the head of the Settlement.

Peter's voice sounded in my heart and his arms were strong and yet tender about me.

Perhaps

One Woman's Life Story as the Three Fates Wove It

A NEW-BORN girl baby lay pink upon the white pillow, staring about her with wide, intent, blue eyes.

"She seems a nice little thing," remarked the youngest Fate, not unkindly pausing in her work to look down upon the baby. She glanced across at the eldest Fate spinning busily. "What have we in store for her, sister?" she asked timidly—"happiness?"

The eldest Fate was watching a black thread like an evil thought twine cunningly and rapidly in and out of a maze of gold embroidery. She did not look up.

"Perhaps," she said, with a twist of her thin lips.

* * *

"I'll not wait any longer." The man's voice was angry, impatient. I'm tired of this shilly-shallying. First you will then you won't. Now I want a straight answer.

"Will you or will you not come out West with me?"

"Dear, you know I want to."

The girl's voice was full of tears. "Yes or no?" persisted the man, his hands thrust deep into his trousers pockets, a frown disfiguring his face.

The girl hesitated a moment, staring with unseeing eyes at the garden. Then—

"How can I leave mother?" she burst forth. "She is all alone in the world, and so ill. The doctor says the end may come at any moment. I can't leave her to die by herself, Reggie, I can't, I can't—"

"Then you won't come?"

The man was white with anger.

"After all these years you throw me over deliberately for an old, worthless woman! Think well, Myra, what you're doing. I've been patient too long. If you send me out to Canada alone I'll marry the first good-looking woman I meet out there to punish you."

The anger died out of his face at her pale silence. He took a step forward. His arms went out to her.

"Myra, little Myra," he whispered, his face on her dark hair. "Be reasonable. You know I love you. You know you love me. Say you will come."

So willing she came in his arms that he thought he had won. But suddenly she drew herself away and stared at him with eyes that shone very blue out of a tear-disfigured face.

"I can't, I can't," she said, passionately. "Oh, I wish I could, but I can't."

* * *

"I CALL it a shame," said the youngest Fate, indignantly.

The Second Fate shrugged her shoulders. "Tut, girl, don't be foolish. She must take her chance with the rest," she said, coldly.

But the youngest Fate leaned forward and looked unabashed across at the eldest Fate.

"Aren't you going to let her be happy?" she asked her.

The eldest Fate bit off a piece of thread before answering. Then:

"Perhaps," she returned, enigmatically.

* * *

"MYRA, come here," called a frail woman. "I've some news for you." The white head nodded unsteadily, the invalid's hand beckoned.

"You remember Mr. Thornton, the young engineer, who used to come here before he went West? Well, he's married. It's here in the paper that came this morning. Dear me, to think of it! And I always thought he was a little bit taken with you.

"Myra, don't you hear what I am saying?"

* * *

"DO you call that making her happy?" asked the youngest Fate, bending forward to touch the eldest Fate on the knee.

The eldest Fate did not seem to be listening. But after a moment or two of silence she answered absentmindedly:

"Perhaps."

* * *

A WOMAN with gray hair and singularly blue eyes was under a tree in a garden, with a crowd of children pressing about her. They had been playing boisterous games all through the long, hot afternoon, and now rested, listening to the fairy tales the blue-eyed woman told them.

"And so they lived happily ever after," the soft voice finished.

A curly headed girl in a froth of white muslin looked pleadingly up at the gray-haired woman.

"Tell me a fairy story now out of your own head," she begged. "One with a princess in it and a fairy prince!"

"And a giant," came from a sturdy boy.

The woman looked over the clustering heads, dark, brown and fair, to where the blue hills beyond melted into a bluer sky.

"The only story I know, children," she began presently, "has no princess in it! Just a very ordinary girl."

"Has it a fairy prince?" asked the white-frocked girl.

The gray-haired woman shook her head.

"It had," she answered, slowly, "but the fairy prince turned into a man and went away right out of the story."

"Has it a giant?" asked the boy.

The woman was silent for a moment. "Yes," she said, very low, "it has a giant. "The biggest giant in the world. His name is Despair. And the giant carried off the heroine to his castle and now she is shut up there forever."

"And when will he come?"

"Soon," said the gray-haired woman, "for she is very tired of waiting."

* * *

"I THINK we made a mess of that girl's life," remarked the youngest Fate, frankly, busy running threads of happiness through the otherwise gray web she was weaving.

The second Fate said "Pish," impatiently.

But the eldest Fate said nothing till she had finished the word upon which she was engaged. Then she cut the thread and answered:

"Perhaps!"

On Seeing the Other Point of View

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SAID a very successful business woman to me recently, "I have just come from a conference with the heads of our firm. There were five men there and myself. We had met to discuss how to make a half-a-million-dollar corporation into a million-dollar one, and I was delighted at being invited to the conference.

"I was asked because they wanted my opinions and ideas, and, as I supposed, my feminine viewpoint. Imagine my surprise when, at the end of my suggestions, our president exclaimed, 'How like a woman.' Of course it was like a woman. I am a woman, and I have a feminine viewpoint. In plans it touches the masculine one, and where it fails to touch it generally can comprehend. But surely, surely it is different because my training and heredity and most of the facts of my being are different.

"In this world there are almost as many points of view as there are people, and in women, I think, there is the human point of view. There are fundamental dissimilarities between the masculine and feminine viewpoints, and there are occasions when the two will hardly be reconciled, and the man who examined, 'How like a woman' probably had no exclusively masculine an angle of vision that he was narrow and warped and incapable of understanding even another man's attitude toward things if it were very dissimilar from his own.

THE SENSE OF HUMOR

It has often been said that a woman has no sense of humor. Whoever says it probably has none; for, though woman is likely to take herself a little too seriously, still she can see most of the fun in life when it does not affect her personally.

Frequently women are not "good sports" in that they cannot face defeat, but out of this fault comes a virtue, for they will not acknowledge or accept defeat, and they sometimes force the impossible to become possible. The feminine unwillingness to see things as they are may lead to victory in the realm of what may be.

And then as men, by force and determination and active onslaught, bend circumstances to their will, so women, by ignoring failure, stumble into victory.

Feminine instinct is, after all, just a certain greater fineness in woman and a certain ability to put themselves in sympathetic tune with things. A woman may sense a situation and adjust herself to it and it to her by delicate compromise, where a man, by practical force, will work it out to an issue. So some of the best work in the world is done when men and women work hand-in-hand.

Feminine instinct plus masculine insight, feminine fineness plus masculine determination, feminine patience plus masculine force, feminine sympathy plus masculine dominance make a wonderful combination whereby worlds may be conquered.

A NEW PARTNERSHIP

There is a new partnership of men and women today in the world of work. It is here and it has come to stay. It will work out best if each works naturally along the lines of their inherited abilities and understandings with an acceptance of the fact that the shortcomings of one sex are counterbalanced by the special abilities of the other and that each has much to give and take.

The business world is no place for coquetry or sex-consciousness or the play of emotion. It has to do with mentalities and with the ability to work.

We do not expect woman to do her work like a woman, and women certainly must accept the fact that man's thinking will be along the lines of his inherited prejudices, training and ability.

A splendid partnership is possible for men and women under these circumstances and a much finer, keener understanding and appreciation of each other.

Do You Know That—

His Choice

A street-corner orator was addressing an audience which consisted mainly of small boys.

His subject was kindness to animals, and he urged his listeners to treat our dumb friends with mercy. Just as he reached the end of his harangue a lady observed a pair leading two little dogs on a double leash—one white and the other black.

The speaker seized his opportunity.

"Now, suppose those dear little animals began fighting," he said, loudly, "after hearing what I have said, what is the first thing you would do?"

A paralyzed silence fell on the crowd. A very small boy in the front row eyed the two dogs critically.

"Well, guv'nor," he said at last, "I fink I'd bet a dime on the black one."

A curious plant, called the "water chestnut," is found in China, the tubes of which, eaten raw or in stews, are much liked by the native epicures. They are also sliced and shredded for soups.

Medals as decorations for military services were first given in England by Charles the First in 1643.

British cigar-inch howitzer guns fire a shell weighing 100 to 200 pounds, but the gun itself can be drawn by horses.

Ivory is not obtainable solely from elephants, but also from the hippopotamus, narwhal and walrus.

Tea and coffee retain their properties better if kept in glass jars rather than in tin receptacles.

Lord Derby is honorary colonel of no fewer than eighteen infantry battalions in Lancashire.

Last year there were 2,543,600 acres of land in England devoted to the cultivation of wheat.

In Argentina there is a natural bridge that spans the Rio Mendoza and is known as the Inca Bridge. It is the work of nature, and not, as was once popularly supposed, of the Incas.

In Algeria, Tunis and the Desert of Sahara French military engineers, by boring artesian wells, have created twenty hundreds of rich oases that have added immensely to the prosperity of these regions.

Should the Shah of Persia be deprived of his income he would still be one of the richest persons in the world. He would only have to sell his ornaments, gems and precious stones to become possessed of about $35,000,000.

There is no established religion in Austria.

Made Standard by the French Government

The French Government ordered 200,000 boxes of Cadum ointment for use in Army and Navy, which is indisputable evidence of its high character. The formula from which it is made thus meets the requirements of the War and Health Departments of France, and Cadum becomes one of the standard remedies of the world. Cadum ointment is wonderfully soothing and healing to an inflamed, irritated or diseased skin, and has proved a blessing to many who have suffered for years from tormenting skin troubles. It stops the irritation and itching at once, and begins healing with the first application. Obstinate cases of eczema, sores, eruptions, rashes, chilblains and other skin disorders usually yield to its curative properties. Trial box, 10c.; large box, 25c. —Advertisement.

Removes Coarse, Bristly Growths of Hair

This method removes coarse, stubborn growths of hair as effectually as pastes and other preparations remove soft, downy ones. In referring to Du Miracle, the original liquid depilatory which attacks hair under the skin as well as on the skin, Vogue says: "I know of none better." Only genuine publications of the highest character are quoted by us. Beware of so-called hair removers which are supposedly recommended through bogus quotations from so-called magazines which do not exist.—Advertisement.

How to Lose Your Tan, Freckles or Wrinkles

A day's motoring, an afternoon on the tennis ground or golf links, a sunbath on the beach or exposure on a sea trip, often leaves one's complexion tanned, freckled, more perplexing still, a vigorous crop of freckles. A very necessary and then immortalized wax, which removes tan, freckles or skin deep blemishes. It literally peels off the affected skin—but a little at a time, so that there is no shock to the skin comes off in almost invisible, flaky particles. Just a few days' use is shown. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggists and use it the night as you would cold cream, washing off mornings. In a week or so you will have an entirely new skin, beautifully clear, transparent and of a most delicate whiteness.

Wrinkles, so apt to form at this season, may be easily and quickly removed by bathing the face in a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in witch hazel, ½ pint. This is not only a valuable astringent, but has a beneficial tonic effect.—Advertisement.

IT COULD BE A LOT WORSE AT THAT!

Captain Nelson, with the aid of the famous sun, a lense from his telescope and some dry leaves, starts a fire. Red Dog Finney, able seaman, traps several of the birds with which the island abounds. Mike Swanson discovers an empty tomato can in the wreck of the small boat and some fresh water. The result is a bird stew. What kind of bird stew nobody knows, but what's in a name. You can't eat one, can you? Plum Duff McGarty, another able seaman, makes all hands hats from a kind of a palm tree found on the island. These hats ward off the hot sun in great shape. Now, if there was only a post office or a telephone handy there would be nothing much to worry about. Oh, well, what do you want for nothin', as Skinny Shaner says.

SECRET SERVICE MEN AT POWDER FACTORIES

GUNMEN FOILED IN SOUTH END HOLDUP

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Secret Service and Department of Justice special agents today are investigating not only one recent explosion in powder mills of the country working on contracts for the allies, but a series of "accidents" in plants manufacturing other classes of war materials.

Special Agent Bielaski of the Department of Justice, admits that some of his best men have been assigned to determine the truth of charges that a well organized conspiracy exists to cripple plants that have received by orders for war supplies. So far it is said no evidence has been obtained to support this theory, but the investigation is to be continued until it is known whether there is any connection between the various accidents at a similar nature and a plot to cause them or not.

Although some of the investigations are being made in co-operation with local authorities, the activities of them are entirely independent and conducted exclusively by federal officers. There has been turned over to them in certain instances evidence gathered by the police of Bridgeport which has been operating for the British embassy since the commencement of the war.

This evidence, it is alleged, indicates that recruiting stations were "suggested" by certain sympathizers with the German cause for action which would prevent filling of contracts for war materials.

Among the places where investigations are known to be in progress are Baltimore, Wilmington, Bridgeport, Ct., Acton, Mass., and certain mid-Western cities where contracts for clothing and automobiles for the allies have been held up because of disabled machinery.

U. S. Delays Action on the Dacia Case

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Diplomacy will not be resorted to by the United States in the case of the former Hamburg-American liner Dacia condemned with her cargo of cotton by a French prize court, until the ship's owner has exhausted his right of appeal in the courts of France.

Five negroes, two of whom were armed, made a daring attempt early today to rob George Fanigas, cashier in the restaurant of Philos & Kaloudis at No. 412 Massachusetts avenue, South End.

A man giving the name of Frank H. Anderson, twenty-six, of Corning street, was captured after a chase. He is said to have been one of the quintet of highwarmen and is held at the East Dedham street station charged with attempted robbery.

According to Fanigas, two of the men entered the cafe and ordered ham and wiches to take out. Their three companions remained in the doorway. Fanigas was given ten cents in change for the sandwiches. He was about to place the money in the cash register when one of the men pulled a revolver and demanded all the money in the register.

CHASES FLEEING MAN.

Fanigas refused and was hit over the head with a club. The trio in the doorway rushed into the store. The counter man, Forti Gallas, screamed, frightening the highwaymen. They dashed through the enclosure Massachusetts avenue towards Dedham avenue.

Patrolman Patrick Crowley was attracted to the scene by the cries of Gallas. He gave the alarm and getting into a passing automobile started in pursuit.

At the corner of Northampton street and Columbus avenue he overtook Anderson, who put up a vigorous fight. He was finally subdued and placed under arrest.

In the meanwhile a civilian, who witnessed the struggle between the police and Anderson, informed Captain Gallivan at police headquarters. A police wagon was sent to the East Dedham street station and was hurried to the scene. For an hour afterwards the police of the entire district in an effort to locate the men who had escaped.

MAN IS ATTACKED.

Two of these men are described as being about twenty-seven years and about six feet in height. The other pair are said to be twenty-five years, five feet seven inches in height. All were dark clothing and gray caps.

Shortly before the holdup, Joseph F. Kelley, twenty, a guest at the Hotel Plaza, was attacked by an unknown assailant at the corner of Columbus avenue and West Newton street. He received an ugly wound in his left cheek. He was treated at the City Hospital and stated that he was unable to furnish a description of his assailant, because he had been attacked from behind.

WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & MANUFACTURING COMPANY

To Holders of Certificates of Deposit for Convertible Sinking Fund Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds deposited under the Plan and Agreement of May 12, 1915:

The offer to stockholders to subscribe to the new Convertible Bonds of the Company has resulted in the purchase by said stockholders of all new bonds offered, with the exception of $421,000, and in accordance with the provisions of the above Plan, said new Bonds not subscribed for by the stockholders will be distributed pro rata among the depositing bondholders, who will receive on account of the bonds deposited bonds at the rate provided for by the Plan, viz.: 105 and accrued interest.

On and after September 10, 1915, as of which date interest on the deposited bonds will cease, depositing bondholders, upon surrender of their certificates of deposit at the office of the Depositary, will be entitled to receive for each deposited bond:

Cash ($967.33 bonds at 105% and interest).....	$1,024.96
Fractional Certificate exchangeable for new Convertible Bond, Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds, when issued.....	32.68

Fractional certificates issued to represent the new Convertible Bonds will not bear interest — but will be exchangeable for permanent engraved bonds, bearing interest from July 1, 1915, when prepared and ready for delivery, on surrender of such certificates at the office of the Depositary, in amounts of not less than $1,000 or any multiple thereof; and, pending the date of delivery of the permanent engraved bonds, said fractional certificates may be exchanged for Full Paid $1,000 Receipts for such Bonds. On any such exchange any fractional amount of such certificates over $1,000 or any multiple thereof will be redeemed by the Company at 112½ and interest, or, at the option of the holder, a new fractional certificate will be issued therefor.

Full Paid $1,000 Receipts, exchangeable for new bonds when prepared, will be issued direct to depositing bondholders entitled to fractional receipts aggregating not less than $1,000 or any multiple thereof, a fractional certificate being issued for any fractional amount in excess of $1,000 or any multiple thereof.

THE AMOUNT OF FRACTIONAL CERTIFICATES TO BE DISTRIBUTED BEING SO SMALL, THE COMPANY HAS DETERMINED FOR THE CONVENIENCE OF THE DEPOSITING BONDHOLDERS TO MAKE AN ALTERNATIVE OFFER TO PAY CASH AT 112½ AND INTEREST FOR THE FRACTIONAL CERTIFICATES DISTRIBUTABLE AS ABOVE HEREIN. SUCH CERTIFICATES WILL BE PURCHASED AT SAID PRICE IF TENDERED AT THE OFFICE OF THE TREASURER OF THE COMPANY, NO. 165 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY, ON OR BEFORE OCTOBER 1, 1915, AFTER WHICH DATE NO CERTIFICATES WILL BE SO PURCHASED.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular at the opening in New York, with railroads higher as a rule, but profit-taking cropped off and war order issues in most instances showing declines when not unchanged. There was more business in the railroad group than has been usual of late, the price ranges for all classes was rather narrow. There is more conservatism in speculating in the securities of munition makers. The improvement in railroads is largest due to reports as to July earnings. They are regarded as favorable in most cases and are one of the most hopeful business signs of the year.

It is believed war order stocks will become more attractive to investors if British and French bankers are able to obtain in this country credits for at least half a billion dollars. More munition orders will be placed as soon as proper arrangements are made. Meanwhile, as was expected, sterling exchange continues to fall. Exchange on London early today was a shade above yesterday's low of $4.69¾ for demand, being with the approximately $20,000,000 just received in New York from great Britain and the French loan of about the estimated amount of $35,000,000.

N. Y. MARKET NOT SO BROAD.

At the start the New York market showed a broad list with sales and trading stocks were inactive for awhile. Rock Island was one of the strongest issues.

New Haven also made a good gain. Reading, along with the fifteen minutes were Rock Island 1½, New Haven 1, Union Pacific ¾, Reading ¾, Steel ⅝, Northern Pacific ⅝, Canadian Pacific ¾, Chino ½, Anaconda ⅝, American Smelting ⅝, American Can ½, Beet Sugar ½, and Foundry ⅝, Mexican Petroleum ⅝ and Westinghouse ½.

Declines included Atchison ½, Southern Pacific, ex-dividend, ½, U. S. Steel ¾, Utah Copper ¾, Crucible ⅝, Goodrich ¾, Republican Steel ½ and Tennessee Copper ⅝.

TRADING DULL IN BOSTON.

There was not much business in Boston at the opening and most of the sales were in small lots of mining shares. Since did not reflect sales of Shannon higher as high as 15 cents a pound. It is claimed that coppers were given a setback by the decline of metal prices in London yesterday. In that market today spot copper, futures and electrolytic were all unchanged. But spelter advanced £2. Lead was £5 easier.

A few minutes after the opening in the Boston stock market sales included Butte & Superior ⅝, Alaska Gold ⅛, Copper Range ⅝, Wolverine ⅛, New Haven ⅛, Mexican Petroleum and Atlantic Gulf preferred ⅝. American Zinc was off ⅛.

DETECTIVE HELD ON CHARGE OF KILLING WIFE

By the International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Held in connection with the mysterious murder of his wife, shot to death in his office, Samuel Leitner, a private detective, today was taken to Jefferson Market Police Court, to be arraigned on a homicide charge.

Leitner, whom Inspector Farrel declares he took from one of the detectives in New York, was arrested and taken to police headquarters early today on a charge of murdering his wife, Sarah, 27 years old, and then shooting himself. Leitner, arrested when he failed to substantiate his story that after his wife was shot five times in his office he saw two men in gray caps running from the office, is still under guard.

Witnesses named by Leitner refused to corroborate his story of the two men.

It was not long after the police began their investigation of the shooting that they learned that Leitner and his wife frequently quarrelled violently. On Thursday night of last week he drove her into the street in his automobile.

After the shooting the police discovered a revolver hidden in a chimney of the building where Leitner has his office.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

The Menace of the Mosquito

THE mosquito has become a menace in Massachusetts, instead of merely an extreme annoyance.

The anopheles or malarial mosquito has appeared and has caused a number of distinct epidemics of malarial fever.

The division of hygiene of the State Department of Health has issued a special bulletin on "Mosquitoes and Malaria," telling people how to destroy the mosquito and how to head off malaria by quinine. This, says the board, is as far as it can go. It can do nothing to eliminate the pest.

That lies with the people. If the public determines that it should be done, and demands that it be done, it CAN be done.

In Panama, a country of swamps and morasses, intelligent effort has practically exterminated the mosquito.

In New Rochelle, N. Y., bordering the Sound, and surrounded by mosquito-breeding salt marshes, the Woman's Club undertook in 1914 to end the mosquito plague.

With a little money, much pressure on an indifferent council, and a strong appeal to householders and school children, the club members made the town nearly mosquito free. Now the club has turned its efforts in other directions, and the mosquito has come back.

What can be done in a tropical morass and in a suburban town surely can be done in Boston and in Massachusetts generally.

We are told that the mosquitoes now infesting the city are natives, not visitors. If that is the case, they must breed in spots where water is allowed to collect and stagnate—roofs, alleys, vacant lots.

Vigorous enforcement of the health regulations would clean up such places and destroy thousands of hatcheries where billions of the pests are bred.

Even if all the mosquitoes of the present vintage do not carry malaria, they can as easily carry other infection as the fly, and more easily distribute it, for they destroy the protecting armor of the skin with their bills and leave the germs they have collected to do their work.

Furthermore, swarming through houses, apartments and tenements, they make their first prey the delicate-skinned babies, robbing them of needful sleep and causing real suffering—suffering which the babies have no language to communicate.

To rid Massachusetts of this plague would require the spending of a little money and the exercise of a great deal of energy on the part of the departments of health.

It is a work that has been done in many places. Let the health departments develop the efficiency, and from at least one invader we shall be secure.

A Silver Lining in the Home Situation

IT is well to note now and again the soundness of home conditions.

Of prime moment is the wonderfully consistent progress in the steel trade. The leading interests and most independents have increased operations steadily to what practically amounts to 100 per cent. of capacity. Although the huge munition contracts placed get the largest headlines, the orders from domestic manufacturers are mounting inconspicuously and are already in respectable volume. Furthermore, now that business is not being taken just to keep the plants going, prices are better, and the character of the products called for permits of a good margin of profit. Were the steel industry the sole measure of conditions, the country could fairly be termed prosperous.

The fact that strikes are frequent does not mean hard times, but rather that employes in many lines want a larger share of the bounties resulting from good times.

Sunshine is bringing along the widely-heralded billion-bushel wheat crop. No consumer should have the least solicitude over the possibility that the warring nations may not need huge quantities of our grains. It is mainly the speculative farmer and the professional in the "pit" who are concerned lest wheat decline to less than $1 a bushel.

The silver lining in the clouds hovering over the country has very little alloy.

Once-Overs

The Rev. Billy Sunday says that "the trouble with too many people is that they use the hold-backs too much and the traces too little."

True, isn't it?

Have you not been planning for some time to do something to better your condition, but for some reason you have been holding back till a little later?

Come to think of it, are you not ashamed when you remember many of those excuses you have made to yourself for not going ahead with your half-formed plan for improvement which might so easily be carried out and completed?

Is it not a fact that you are hesitating because it will cause you a little extra work to be successful?

Are you not reluctant about denying yourself some pleasure or some leisure time necessary to the realization of your plan?

The whole trouble with you is that you do not want success "hard enough."

It is about time you dropped the "hold-backs" and got into the "traces."

Although the one-day strike planned by the Suffragists of 500,000 women and girls in New York City, to show the importance of woman's place outside the home as well as in it, has been officially declared off, Artist McCay's cartoon does not lose any force, for it will give food for thought for the antis whose principal argument is that "Woman's place is the home."

Harriet Ford Tells How a Girl May Succeed as a Dramatist

By Harriet Ford

Miss Ford, as a dramatist, has had three consecutive successes. "The Argyle Case," "The Dummy" and "Polygamy."

No. 1—Training

SOME one who knows all about it has said that the drama is a highly specialized, highly organic, highly concentrated, infinitely difficult form of fiction. Perhaps it is best for the young woman who wishes to become a dramatist to know the worst at once, and face that formula.

To succeed as a writer of plays you must first have dramatic instinct. It may be dramatic instinct in you that impels you so insistently to the drama. If that is the motive power you have surely chosen the right calling. Gertrude Athurton says that by painstaking, hard work one can train oneself to write fiction; not great fiction, but salable fiction. I do not think that is true of dramatic instinct. Having that you can by hard practice develop yourself to do the work required.

If you decide young to become a dramatist, take advantage of every opportunity to act as an amateur; or to write for amateurs. It is a sort of initiation. If possible, go on the professional stage for a time. That will give you the best preliminary training. Learn there the mechanics of your art, and, aside from mere technique, acquire a sense of the movement of characters on the stage.

If the professional stage is impossible, a course at Columbia College, under Professor Brander Matthews, or the course in drama provided at Harvard, would start you on the right road. At Harvard your work as a student might be produced. The Harvard prize play last year had a long run in Boston.

There is a book by William Archer, "Play Making," that I have heard is a valuable aid to the young dramatist.

Don't begin by trying to dramatize a book. It is a bewildering task for the most experienced dramatist. Train yourself from the first to create your own plot and develop your own characters. Start with a one-act play. If you can present one dramatic episode with characters well drawn and scenes constructed so that the interest is cumulative, you will prove that the writing of a four-act play is, for you, only a matter of infinite pains.

See every play you can, and if you have friends connected with the theatre secure the privilege from them of watching rehearsals.

Study people—the emotional life of people about you. Study types. Study the relations of individuals in groups, and the inevitable drama that results from the clash of personalities. Study how to reveal a character simply by what he says and does. Keep abreast of the times. Read the newspapers and the best plays. Study the themes of Ibsen, the comedy of Moliere, the construction of Belasco. And do not try and imitate Bernard Shaw.

In her next article Miss Ford will tell how the action of a new play is first "framed" like the steel skeleton of a high building.

In-Shoots

Oratory consists in making commonplace thoughts seem like the musings of a sage.

The political trail hitter never wavers when an office is in sight.

Flashes on the Screen

By S. E. Kiser

NO CAUSE TO COMPLAIN

THIS world looks very good to me, although I have not won renown;
I'm not, nor do I hope to be, the richest person in this town;
I have to work for all I get, but that's a hardship I can bear,
And if I sometimes am in debt I never give up in despair,
A baby meets me at the door each night when I from toil am free,
And so, as I have said before, this world looks very good to me.

MY planning often comes to naught, my wants are not all satisfied;
There have been times when I have sought rewards that never were supplied;
I see men prosper, who, I know, get on by means that are unfair;
I have no envy of them, though, or covet profits which they share;
A baby waits for me at night, and greets me with a shout of glee;
My dreams are sweet, my cares are light; the world looks very good to me.

WHY WAIT

We speak in accents kind and fair
Concerning those who have departed;
We praise the ones who travel where
The shoreless seas are all uncharted;
But would it not be better still
To be a little more forgiving,
And cease so often to speak ill
Concerning people who are living?

The average man's idea of fair play is to have about nine-tenths of the advantage on his side.

Old friends are the best, because they have learned to excuse our faults.

Stars and Stripes

ON PAGE ONE.—The River Bug has no wings at all, but it gets there just the same.

FASHION NOTE.—Some smart folk are substituting bad checks for good stripes.

Chicago judge lays crime on the hookworm, yet many think work a crime.

In 1915 we consumed 758,000,000 pounds of tobacco, showing us to be vegetarians.

Astronomers say the moon won't keep still. They wouldn't either if they were constantly being shot at.

General Wood thinks a standing army of 500,000 better than a larger army that won't stand.

A Sane Censorship

In "Experience" Is a Scene Which Would Come Under the Mayor's Ban, but He Has Wisely Decided That the Moral Purpose Justifies Him in Permitting Its Presentation.

In the play "Experience," which is now in Boston at the Shubert Theatre, there is a scene which depicts the dregs of humanity indulging in the most horrible of all habits, the use of cocaine or morphine.

It happened that Mayor Curley, a few days ago, informed the theatrical managers that no impersonations of dope fiends, Apache dances or similar degrading and demoralizing exhibitions would be permitted on the Boston stage.

The Mayor had in mind the alleged humorous performances of this description which have been seen in the past in musical shows or farce comedy. The use of a ghastly habit or condition to provoke laughter is certainly not edifying, and the Mayor's regulation was regarded as reasonable by the theatrical managers and others.

"Experience," however, is a very serious play. The first performance in Boston was in the presence of an audience of clergymen, who were almost unanimous in announcing it to be as good as a sermon, and one of the most valuable moral lessons ever displayed in the form of a drama.

The den of cocaine sniffers revealed in "Experience" causes no laughter. It is one of the most dreadful pictures of degradation ever drawn. That anybody in the audience would be attracted to the drug habit after witnessing the sufferings of the habitues so well depicted by the actors is not to be believed.

Mayor Curley very sensibly has decided that such a scene as this cannot properly be forbidden, and has modified his original order to permit "Experience" to be given, with very slight changes in the "dope" episode.

It would have been a pity had a play so evidently created to stimulate morality come under the ban intended for those entertainments that have no noble purpose, and the Mayor and the producers of "Experience" and the public are to be congratulated upon the outcome.

In Boston, as in every great city, there are many thousands of people who do not go to church, but who do go to the theatre. They seek entertainment rather than instruction.

When a play which is very entertaining, and at the same time a very powerful sermon, comes along, it is going to appeal to this large element in the community as well as the church-going population, which it is sure to please.

In the play "Experience" Youth leaves Ambition to follow Pleasure, who appears in the garb of a very beautiful woman. In a gay scene called "The Primrose Path," whose joy is most skilfully shown to the audience to be hollow, Youth learns to drink, and through the wine cup his downfall begins. You follow him through gambling dens lower and lower in the social order, until he associates with dope fiends and criminals.

"Only a miracle can save him," says "Experience" in the play. Now, in real life miracles do not happen. In all probability Youth would go on until he landed in jail or a madhouse when he had sunk so far, but upon the stage miracles can be produced whenever needed and the miracle turns Youth away from Crime back to Love and Hope, who are still faithfully waiting for him in the country.

A play should have a happy ending, so Youth is saved. In every other respect "Experience" cleaves close to the line of life. No person who sees the play can fail to draw comparisons between some incident in Youth's career and his own, and it is reasonable to expect that some persons who are hesitating between the steep and narrow path and the broad and easy road to destruction may be led to choose the better one.

In any event "Experience" causes people to think, and when a person takes the trouble to really think he is greatly benefited, no matter what his mental labor produces.

Lavender and Dreams

By Jane McLean

THIS is my grandmother's old chest,
Where live the things she loved the best.
And if I lift the lid I'll know
The world she lived in long ago.
First comes the scent of lavender,
A dear unspoken breath of her,
And then a tiny broken fan,
My grandmother, did she coquet
While stepping through the minuet?
Here is a letter tracing faint,
And slipper buckles carved and quaint,
And here the yellow of old lace
That one time framed a girlish face.
O, grandmother of long ago,
The soul of you must surely know
That soul of me supremely blessed
That knows the things you loved the best.
